Broader Neutrality Act Revision Looms

REQUEST SEEN TO SEND SHIPS INTO WAR AREA

Connally Prepares Measures To Broaden Scope of House Approved Bill.

SENATE GROUP MEETS

Hears Opposition on Removal of Ship Arms Ban; FDR Anxious For Change.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The administration today apparently had decided to widen its neutrality act revision reports and seek not only the arming of merchant ships but also permission for them to voyage anywhere, in war zones and out.

For the the moment, the issue before the senate foreign relations committee was consideration of the house-approved resolution limiting revision to the removal of the ban on ship arming.

However, as the committee convened to hear some more opposition witnesses, Chairman Connally (D., Tex.) revealed to reporters that he was having amendments drafted to broaden the scope of the house resolution.

The resolution, Connally contended, should be expanded to knock out the present neutrality act prohibitions against American merchantmen entering belligerent ports or combat zones.

The third day of closed committee hearings on the armed ship measure, found John Cudahy, former ambassador to Belgium; John T. Flynn, the columnist, and John Finerty, New York attorney, on the witness list.

Downtown, Stephen T. Early, the White House press secretary, emphasized yesterday that Mr. Roosevelt was anxious for congress to give quick consideration to legislation permitting American ships to enter belligerent ports. Connally told reporters that sentiment now was swinging behind that proposal.

There was general agreement that the foreign relations group would reject the suggestion of Wendell L. Willkie and more than 100 other Republicans that congress repeal the neutrality law completely.

"There are some provisions that we ought to preserve," Connally

VACATION'S ON

Pupils Get Tomorrow Off as Teachers Go To Meetings.

Pupils in Mansfield and Richland county school will start a three-day holiday this evening as 395 of their teachers attend the North Eastern Ohio Teachers association convention in Cleveland Friday and Saturday.

Although most of the teachers will journey to Cleveland, both W. L. Miller, city school superintendent, and Boyd Robinson, county superintendent, said some would attend sessions of the Central Ohio group in Dayton.

Among educator-speakers at the Cleveland meeting will be Dr. R. B. Kleinsmid, president of the University of California; Dr. Curtis Bok, Philadelphia; George T. Costello, American Red Cross; Dr. James Pollard, Ohio State university, and Dr. Pliny Powers, New York university.

Job Pinch Beginning to Hit Other Cities In Ohio

Baffle Voters

One of the strangest situations that ever developed in a municipal political campaign has the voters of Canton completely baffled. Mrs. Winifred Weeks Gardner, 73, top, of Knoxville, Md., came to Canton and made a speech asking voters not to elect Charles W. Weeks, bottom, Democratic candidate, mayor, charging he was a "German sympathizer." She claimed to be Weeks' sister. Weeks, who claims Scotch-English descent, denied that Mrs. Gardner is his sister.

40,000 Face Idleness Along with 1,300 In Mansfield.

ACTION HELPS

Reports Show Steps Taken Here Will Ease Situation.

Industrial centers in every section of the state are beginning to feel the pinch of defense priorities with more than 40,000 workers, including about 1,300 in Mansfield, facing lay-offs before the end of the year unless the state receives more defense orders, the Ohio Bureau of Unemployment Compensation reported today.

One of the first cities to recognize the seriousness of the labor situation and to do something about it, Mansfield has been placed on the preferred list of the Office of Production Management and the outlook here is brighter than in many of the cities.

The bureau's report pointed out that all of the 1,300 workers who are threatened with loss of their jobs here could be retained by two plants if they receive defense contracts.

Continuing their efforts to avert laying off any more workers, officials of the Mansfield Westinghouse plant conferred yesterday with army ordnance officials in Cleveland on the possibility of obtaining a munitions contract for the Mansfield plant.

Ordnance officers declined to discuss the meeting, but they said no decision has been reached. The Westinghouse plant, however, is said to be in line for the contract which would provide employment for a number of workers who otherwise might be furloughed.

Attending the conference from here were C. L. VanDerau, manager of manufacturing; P. Y. Donley, defense manager, and Harry Rist, factory superintendent.

The Buereau of Unemployment Compensation reported that 7,000 workers have been laid off by Ohio industry in the past 60 days because the supply of steel and other materials has been sharply curtailed by the government in favor of holders of defense contracts.

Toledo and Dayton have been hardest hit of the larger cities.

'Think Only This Of Me'

". . That there's some corner of a foreign field that is forever England!" So sang Sir Rupert Brooke, the British poet, of such heroes as Corporal J. H. Edmonston had been awarded Britian's greatest honor for gallantry, the Victoria Cross. A comrade stands in silent tribute beside the grave.

'Platonic Lover' Says He Doesn't Want to Join Army

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— An unnamed draft registrant from northern Ohio who says he is a "neurotic schizophrenic" and doesn't want to be a soldier gave state selective service headquarters a problem in Freudian psychology today.

The reluctant registrant wrote to his local draft board:

"I am a platonic lover and a dual personality. I am a neurotic, schizophrenic and also an auto eroticist. Have very little physical strength, easily exhausted, frequently have sick headaches, extremely nervous, effeminate and very emotional."

A different plea by a registrant from Muskingum county said:

"I have headaches, kidney trouble, bad stomach, softening of the brain and catarrah. Can't read without glasses. Can't stay in the hot sun. Was told by my doctor not to smoke, drink anything alcoholic, coffee or tea, eat no meat or pastries."

HAROLD'S HAPPY

Says There Won't Be Any Gas Shortage In East, After All.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Petroleum Co-ordinator Ickes said today that the prospect of a severe petroleum shortage in the east, about which he was warned often in recent weeks, now was virtually erased.

Gasoline supplies now are actually above last year, Ickes reported.

For the first time since he gloomily told last summer of possible gasless autos and homes with heat this winter, the co-ordinator declared the general outlook on the Atlantic seaboard now was "optimistic" but he did not say when rationing of gasoline to filling stations would be ended.

Order U. S. 30 Open for Traffic to Tyger Game

Highway Officials Hold Up Plans for Detour as Aid to 3,500 Expected to Drive to Massillon.

The state department of highways today ordered the U. S. route 30 highway cleared of all detours as a measure of safety for the thousands of Mansfielders who will be leaving by automobile tomorrow for Ohio's outstanding high school football classic—the game between Mansfield and Massillon.

Informed by The News-Journal that some 3,500 of the 5,000 Mansfield fans expect to travel to the game by automobile, Vance Grimes, Ashland division highway engineer, promptly cancelled a detour scheduled for route 30 between Wooster and Massillon.

"If that many automobiles are going to be on that highway we'll call off all detours and give drivers a clear highway to Massillon," Grimes said.

The detour between Wooster and Massillon was to have started tomorrow while finishing touches were being applied to the pavement improvement on that stretch of the highway.

As a result of his decision, motorists will be able to take route 30 directly into Massillon, with the exception of a 500-foot stretch where they will have to go around a bridge which is being erected at East Union, nine miles east of Wooster.

Meanwhile, The News-Journal was advised by the Massillon authorities of the best route for reaching the football stadium after fans reach the city.

They urged that drivers continue through the Massillon business district on route 30 until they reach 19th street. At that intersection, traffic officers will be on hand to direct them on to the stadium.

In refusing to grant the writ the supreme court upheld the Mahoning county common pleas court decision which stated that the candidates had used "legal fraud and mistake" to get on the ballot.

BOARD HUNTS COMPROMISE IN RAIL DISPUTE

Fact-Finders End 27 Days of Taking Testimony on Wage Demands.

WILL REPORT TO FDR

Brotherhoods Prohibited From Striking Until 30 Days After Report.

(By United Press)

CHICAGO—A five-man presidential fact-finding board today shouldered the task of finding a compromise to prevent a paralyzing nationwide railroad strike.

Representatives of the nation's major carriers and of 1,260,000 of their employes were at opposite poles on wage and other demands when the fact-finding board completed 27 days of evidence taking last night.

Wayne Lyman Morse, dean of the Oregon law school and chairman of the fact-finding board which must report to President Roosevelt by Nov. 5, expressed satisfaction with the settlement machinery and the conduct of the principals in the case.

"The conduct of the parties in this case has exemplified the desirable American way which should be followed by American employes in settling their differences over labor relations," Morse said.

The procedure in the railroad case, which opened last June with employe demands for 30 to 41 per cent wage increase and paid vacations and management counter-proposals for extensive changes in working rules, has followed the steps of the railway labor act, effective since 1926 in preventing an industry-wide work stoppage.

Operating under terms of the act, the fact-finding commission will publish its findings if they are approved by the president. The board's decision does not have the force of law, but depends upon the pressure of public opinion to obtain compliance of the parties.

The law prohibits the brotherhoods from putting into effect the nationwide strike already authorized until 30 days after the board's report has been made public. The democratic process of public opinion, implementing the board's dictum, always has been successful in preventing work stoppages in the past.

The meat of the case as it stood today in the reams of evidence before Morse and his colleagues was that railroad employes, faced with rising living costs, want a share of defense-boomed railroad profits, admittedly at one of the peak points since the industry's inception.

The employes also contend that their wages are as much as 30 per cent below those in other and comparable industries and that they stand alone in not enjoying paid vacations.

Management replies that the employe demands would cost $900,000,000 annually, "equivalent to a confiscation of the industry"; that although the carriers' 1941 net operating income may be the biggest ever, the gain is only temporary and needed for adequate maintenance of plant and investment.

'Chutists and Planes Used In New Onslaught

Germans Claim Double Break-Through On Line Near Capital; Zhukov Takes Control of Red Armies In Shakeup; Tanks Landed Behind Front.

(By Associated Press)

German troops smashing through Moscow's outer defenses from the southwest and west have reached points within 38 miles of the U. S. S. R. capital, Adolf Hitler's high command said today, and London dispatches reported that the Germans were taking to the air with parachute troops and reserve planes in great numbers.

The Nazi claim of a double break-through came as the Russians disclosed a shakeup in the supreme Soviet command on the central front, with Gen. Gregory K. Zhukov, chief of staff, replacing the veteran Marshal Semeon Timoshenko.

Under the new setup, Gen. Zhukov takes command of the entire western zone.

Cited as "fighting, experienced leader" and a soldier of "immense energy," the new Red commander was credited by the Russians with having tightened Moscow's defenses.

Timoshenko was reported transferred to another post.

As the Russians battled desperately against an acknowledged German numerical superiority in tanks and troops, an authoritative source in London bluntly declared that Britain's frontier was on the Volga and urged that imperial Middle East forces—estimated at nearly 1,000,000 troops—be sent to support the Russians in the Ukraine.

"The people of this country are ready to take grave risks for Russia. The army wants to fight," he said.

"Let the government be very certain whatever they decide, and the nation will see them through."

London advices said the Germans, attempting to break the bloody stalemate on land, had thrown hundreds of reserve planes and parachute troops into the 22-day old struggle before Moscow.

German transport planes were reported landing light tanks, armored cars and small field guns behind the Soviet lines, while Stuka bombers carried out mass raids on Red army communication lines.

A bulletin from Hitler's field headquarters said the breakthrough was made on a broad front despite severe weather conditions.

"Rain or snow by day and freezing conditions at night" prevailed over the whole battlefront, according to word received in London.

Latest Soviet military dispatches acknowledged that the Germans had scored a slight advance in the Maloyaroslavets sector, 65 miles southwest of Moscow, pushing toward the vil-

COMMONS URGES ITALY KNOCKOUT

British War Debate Also Calls For Stand With Reds In Ukraine Battle.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Attacks designed to knock Italy out of the war, night land raids on German-held coasts of the continent and a fighting British stand alongside the Red army in the Ukraine were advocated today in a full dress war debate in the house of commons.

Simultaneously Supply Minister Lord Beaverbrook, back from Moscow, told the house of lords that Russia's great losses of war supply manufacturing facilities left the U. S. S. R. in a position akin to that of Britain after Dunkerque.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, replying for the government in commons, declared "we realize what opportunities this German attack (on Russia) offers us, "but added that to tell what plan of action will be taken "would be playing into the hands of the enemy."

"I can only give this house one pledge," he said, "and it is a pledge I assure them that the government is determined to honor.

O. K. EXPECTED

Approval of Lend-Lease By Senate Seen Today.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—The senate is expected to approve today the $5,985,000,000 lend-lease appropriation bill, designed to speed the flow of airplanes, guns and food to Great Britain and her allies.

Senate leaders expected little opposition to the measure, which supplements an original $7,000,000,000 aid-to-democracies fund appropriated shortly after passage of the lend-lease act last spring.

Largest allocations under the new bill would increase supplies of ammunition, agricultural commodities, airplanes and vessels which could be channeled to the battle lines of Europe and Asia.

550 Rural Youths To Be Honored In City Tomorrow

Richland county's 550 rural boys and girls what started 4-H club projects last spring and saw them completed this fall will receive state and county recognition for their work Friday afternoon at "Achievement Day" ceremonies in the Westinghouse auditorium.

The farm youngsters who didn't quit when the weather was hot and the task was harder will go home tomorrow night with blue ribbons and certificates of award to hang in their rooms.

Some of the county clubs which showed outstanding work with projects during the season will receive special recognition. Awards will be made by County Agent George B. Ganyard and Home Demonstration Agent Elizabeth Bay who supervised the 4-H program.

George B. Crane, assistant director of extension work at Ohio State university, will speak during the ceremonies, commending the boys and girls for their summer's work. After the program, the young people will go on a tour of inspection of the Westinghouse plant, the first for most of them.

Boy club members worked with livestock, farm crop, and garden projects, while the girls made clothing, prepared canned goods, and showed proficiency with household tasks.

Because the weather was favorable most of the summer, projects involving farm and garden crops were unusually good this year, with a large percentage of the club members completing their projects.

Boy, 10, Hit By Taxi as He Runs From Halloween Prank

The first accident resulting from a Halloween prank was reported to police last night after a ten-year-old boy had narrowly escaped serious injury when struck by a taxicab.

Harry Hoover ran into the path of a cab not far from his home on Benton street after sticking pin into the horn of a parked car to make it blow continuously. Dale Harmon, 13 Dunbilt court, told police the boy ran into the fender of his car and was knocked to the pavement but was not injured.

Although scores of Mansfield and Richland county boys have been committing a number of pre-Halloween pranks, the Hoover boy is the first reported in an accident.

Mansfield police and Richland county authorities are tightening up their supervision of Halloween activities since they have been besieged with many reports of vandalism during the past week.

Sheriff Frank E. Robinson yesterday issued a warning to boys to stop damaging property and to stop placing articles on roads hampering traffic and making it dangerous for motorists.

Police Chief Meade K. Bates has ordered city cruisers to keep a steady lookout for vandalism and Sheriff Robinson has put two patrol cars on night duty in rural areas.

Blames Lack of Manpower and Faulty Equipment for Quick Spread of Blaze

Chief Tells of Handicaps In Fighting $20,000 Down Town Fire.

Fire Chief Charles Seeburger today blamed the lack of adequate manpower and faulty fire equipment for the rapid spread of the fire which caused approximately $20,000 damage as it swept through a home and offices of two Mansfield physicians yesterday.

"It's the first five minutes that count at any fire," said Seeburger. "If we had had enough men with gas masks to go right into the basement where the fire started, we could have checked it at the first floor instead of allowing it to spread to the second."

Firemen from three companies battled for more than four hours a stubborn blaze which roared through the 11-room home of Dr. C. R. Damron at 30 South Mulberry street and the adjoining offices of Dr. Damron and Dr. L. D. Bonar.

Heavy smoke prevented firemen from getting at the heart

44 CALLED FOR ARMY PHYSICAL EXAMS TODAY

Draft Boards Say Centralized Plan Won't Start Until After Nov. 1.

Informed by state selective service headquarters that it will be impossible to get the centralized plan of physical examinations for registrants under way Nov. 1, two of Richland county's three draft boards called 44 young men to the Mansfield Armory for examinations being held today.

Local boards are requested to continue their examinations until further notice from state headquarters in order to prevent any disruption of the induction schedule.

As soon as the centralized plan goes into operation, registrants from Richland county will go to Fort Hayes, Columbus, for their examinations. They will take only one physical test instead of two.

Board 3 had 34 registrants at the Armory today while Board 1 called 10 youths for their check-up. With an adequate reserve of men in the 1-A classification, Board 2 waived its examination time to the other boards.

Board 3 had only one 1-A registrant in the last group of men examined at the Armory and was forced to step up its examinations to fill the quotas for October and November.

When the examinations are conducted at the Fort Hayes induction station, registrants will be notified at least five days in advance of the date they are to appear in Columbus for their examinations. They will leave in a group from Mansfield under the supervision of a leader, just as the contingents go to Fort Hayes for induction.

Following the examinations, the prospective inductees may be returned home to await induction, even if they pass the physical tests at Columbus. If more than 60 days elapse after the examinations and induction, a second examination will be required, state selective service officials said.

The local board of examining physicians and dentists will remain active, serving in an advisory capacity for the draft boards. In special cases, an occasional examination may still be conducted in Mansfield, draft officials said.

NAZIS ADVANCE 38 MILES FROM SOVIET CAPITAL

Parachutists, Planes Used In Newest Break-Through on Russian Front.

lage of "V" from which they had been driven by an earlier Russian counter-attack.

But the Russians declared they were holding fast in the critical Mozhaisk sector, 57 miles west of Moscow, halting a thrust by Nazi tanks, and that Red troops were counter-attacking heavily against the jaws of the German pincer at Orel, 200 miles south of the capital, and at Kalinin, 95 miles northwest.

Bitter street fighting was reported raging in a city designated only as "N," where six days of house-to-house combat were said to have already cost the Germans 3,800 killed and wounded, 18 tanks, 80 motorcycles and 15 guns.

On the Ukraine front, Soviet dispatches reported the outbreak of fierce new fighting at the approaches to the Crimea peninsula, site of Russia's big Black sea naval base of Sebastopol.

Besides dropping troops behind the Red army lines, German planes were reported bombing Moscow day and night in an attempt to "soften up" Russian morale.

The Germans admitted, however, that Soviet troops were battling with stubborn ferocity and that Nazi divisions freed after mopping-up operations on the Bryansk battlefields had been sent up as reinforcements for the immediate drive on Moscow.

In the south, Nazi dispatches said 900 German tanks had led the assault against Soviet defenses of the Crimea.

The Moscow radio said 5,000 Germans and Rumanians were killed in one phase of a big push against the Crimea, peninsular Soviet republic which was bypassed by most of the southern German armies in the drive east from the Dnieper toward the Donets basin.

Presumably the recent fall of Odessa permitted Adolf Hitler to transfer soldiers who had occupied the siege lines there to bolster the attack upon the Perekop isthmus connecting the Crimea and the Russian mainland.

Germans said the attackers had occupied two villages on the isthmus, Perekop and Armyansk. Pravda, Communist party organ, declared the defenders—protecting the Red fleet base of Sebastopol and offering a threat to German supply lines so long as they hold out—were striking back hard.

London commentators said British troops would join the Russians in defense of the Caucasus if Germans now seeking to cut Donets basin manufacturing centers from the Russian industrial war effort should succeed and turn southeast.

One observer, however, said it would be logical for the Germans to swing north in an attempt to outflank the defenders of Moscow.

A Soviet communique broadcast by the Moscow radio acknowledged a Red army withdrawal from Taganrog, Azov sea port claimed by Berlin last week-end, but declared Germans and Rumanians had lost 35,000 men in killed and wounded there.

For the first time since Sunday midnight, the bureau did not stress fighting west of Moscow, saying simply that Russian troops fought the enemy along the whole front" yesterday.

In a spurt of fighting before Leningrad, the Germans were declared to have taken 1,600 prisoners and 33 flame throwers from a Russian division.

German long-range guns shelled a British convoy in the English Channel today and the Royal Air Force was reported to have hammered again at French ports, particularly Dunkerque, Calais and Boulogne, and northwestern Germany. German night raiders struck at Merseyside—Liverpool's shipping area.

Gunfire Flares on English Channel

LONDON —(UP)— Low-flying spitfire fighting planes roared across the Channel toward Calais on the French coast this morning, and observers heard heavy bursts of shell fire, apparently German anti-aircraft crews shooting at them.

About the same time, German long range guns blazed six or eight rounds at a British convoy off Deal, eight miles northeast of Dover. The convoy was festooned with balloons and no planes attacked it.

An air ministry communique said bombers attacked objectives in the Rhineland, including the industrial center of Mannheim, during the night.

Attacks also were made on harbor works at LeHavre and Brest, on the French coast. Five British planes were missing.

Threaten Death for 50 More Hostages

VICHY, Unoccupied France—(AP)—The French people must turn over to German authorities the two slayers of Lieut. Col. Paul Friedrich Hotz, chief of the German field gendarmerie in Nantes, by midnight (5 p. m. EST) today, or 50 more Frenchmen must pay with their lives for Hotz's death.

Those are the terms of the German ultimatum upon the French for the assassination of a second German officer within 48 hours, Juridical counselor at Bordeaux, caused the arrest of another 100 and raised the grim prospect of still further executions.

German troops segregated Nantes and its environs from the rest of France today as the deadline approached for the shooting of the second batch of 50 Frenchmen unless the terrorists are caught.

Fifty persons already have been put to death for the killing of the commandant.

of the fire quickly. They were called out again at 2:30 p. m. to check a flare-up in the kitchen of the home.

Seeburger pointed out that in some cities a special crew handled all smoke investigation with special masks. With a small crew, Mansfield firemen must connect hose and do every task connected with fighting the fire. This extra activity, according to Seeburger, prevents the men from being physically fit to use gas masks.

Dr. Damron yesterday reported to police that someone had stolen a watch and ring valued at $75 from his stenographer, Miss Bertha Witschi, during the fire. A five-dollar bill was also stolen from Mrs. Charles Falk, who also occupies the house.

Chief Seeburger stated that many of the chemicals in the doctors' offices gave off heavy, acrid smoke which made it almost impossible for firemen to fight the flames.

The fire started in the basement, Seeburger believes, and was due to faulty electrical wiring. From the basement, it shot up through partitions into second floor rooms and closets.

Remarking to the Junior Chamber about the need for more men at a meeting last night, Seeburger said, "we need a minimum crew of four men to every rig with a pumper and at least six men on the aerial truck. How can we possibly control big fires? It takes us twice the time to put out a fire because of not having enough men. We should have had at least 14 men at yesterday's fire and we had only seven."

Seeburger also called attention to the inefficiency of equipment. "We were handicapped by the fact that the truck in No. 2 firehouse couldn't get started and we had further delay in getting No. 3 to the scene."

The fire chief explained that the magneto on the No. 2 truck is made up of parts from three different magnetos and that it took more than an hour yesterday to repair it.

"If it breaks down again," said the chief, "I don't know what we'll do for we can't get parts for it and we've done everything conceivable to fix it."

Seeburger also gave the Junior Chamber members a description of the "antiquated" fire equipment now in use and explained the difficulty in getting parts for the two White and Packard trucks which are no longer manufactured.

Members of the chamber group promised support for the half mill levy vote on Nov. 4 and planned to put up posters urging citizens to support the levy.

ROMEO POISONS SELF AT BIER

Cleveland Machinist Drinks Potion After Sweetheart Dies.

CLEVELAND — (INS) — Roland Draper, 28-year-old machinist, was seriously ill in Glenville hospital today, poisoned by his own hand, police said, in a real life sequence from Romeo and Juliet.

According to police, Draper, despondent over the suicide of a woman they believed was his sweetheart, drank a vial of poison and collapsed in front of the woman's casket.

The poison Draper swallowed was the same taken by Mrs. Violet Shirley, 31, the suicide victim.

MRS. DONALD E. KELLEY

MARTHA JEAN BOYD MARRIED IN GALION CEREMONY WEDNESDAY

GALION — Two large baskets with white chrysanthemums were placed on either side of the fireplace in the living room of their newly built home, South State road, when Martha Jean Boyd and Donald E. Kelley, exchanged nuptial vows Wednesday afternoon.

Only the immediate families were present to witness the single ring service read by Rev. W. N. Robertson, pastor of First Methodist church.

The bride is the oldest of the four daughters of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Boyd, Grove avenue, and a granddaughter of the founder of the Galion Iron Works and Manufacturing company.

Sable trimmed, the smartly fashioned wool costume suit, worn by the bride, was of moss green shade. All of her accessories were of the same color, and she wore a corsage of three pink orchids.

Miss Adelaide Boyd who was her sister's only attendant, wore a Persian trimmed costume suit of black wool. Her large hat and all accessories were black, and a purple orchid formed her corsage.

Fred Vergon of Galion was Mr. Kelley's best man.

Mrs. Boyd appeared at her daughter's wedding in a black wool costume suit, Persian trimmed. With all black accessories, her outfit was completed with a purple orchid corsage.

The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. R. P. Kelley, was attired in a sequin trimmed black dress with matching accessories. A purple orchid was used in her corsage.

From three to five o'clock, the bridal party received 125 guests at a tea at Hotel Talbott, marking one of the loveliest wedding receptions of the year. White chrysanthemums were used in the six baskets placed among palms in attractive arrangements about the hotel's private dining room. White appointments were used on the table from which were served the refreshments. A large wedding cake trimmed in white roses centered the table. During the afternoon, instrumental music was played by The Barbosas, Quico and Nena.

Now on a wedding trip to Chicago, and then through the eastern states, the couple will return in about two weeks. The former Miss Boyd wore her wedding suit for the reception and traveling.

Graduating from Galion High school in 1936, and later from Stephen's college, Columbia, Missouri, until recently the bride has been employed at the Home Appliance store here.

Mr. Kelley, the only son of Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Kelley of Orange street, is a local real estate broker and insurance agent. He attended Ohio university, Athens, where he affiliated with Theta Chi, national social fraternity. He was graduated from Galion High school.

At the reception the following out-of-town guests were present: Mr. and Mrs. H. Y. Wicks of Lakeside, O.; Mr. and Mrs. George Hall, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Connors of Mansfield; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Motsch of Fremont; and Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Kelley of Willard.

every help in our power by every means."

He told commons that even at the expense of the British army, equipment was being speeded to Russia.

Lord Beaverbrook said the United States and British missions to Moscow had promised Joseph Stalin to make up Russia's losses in tanks and planes with shipments from their own production lines.

Laborite Philip J. Noel-Baker, opening for the opposition in a full dress debate on the conduct of the war, declared Britain's frontier now was on the Volga and suggested that Britain's forces in the middle east be sent to support the Russians in the Ukraine.

"This country is ready for any sacrifice to help the Russians," he declared. "The army wants to fight."

No longer the Rhine, but the Volga and Don are Britain's frontier, he said, expressing the belief that "the government's greatest mistake was not seeing the total identity of interests between our allies and themselves."

While praising Prime Minister Churchill for refusing to discuss questions of strategy, he declared "there is deep and widespread anxiety about the war in Russia and what British forces have done to help Russia in her hour of need."

"We now have powerful forces in the middle east," Noel-Baker said, "and I believe our people would be very happy if some part of these forces could be sent to support Russian armies in the Ukraine."

Beaverbrook, minister of supply and head of the British war aid mission to Moscow, declared that Russia has lost textile, munitions and heavy machine industries of great value and compared the U. S. S. R.'s position to that of Britain after Dunkerque.

Stalin told the mission that the Germans had changed panzer tactics in the attacks on Russia by using small numbers of tanks with infantry instead of in masses, Beaverbrook said in a long review of the Moscow conference.

Beaverbrook, who recently returned from the Moscow consultations with Stalin and W. Averell Harriman, head of the American mission, disclosed that Stalin promised Great Britain raw materials from Russia to meet "many of our needs" and said the Russian leader "agreed to supply us with pitch, chrome, potash, magnesite, potassium, timber and canned salmon."

"We promised him aluminum, copper, lead, zinc, brass, phosphorus and shellac. . . . The Americans promised oil and petrol from the United States and that was very gratifying.

"Stalin told us this war was being decided by tanks. He said it was a tank war. I asked him about aircraft, but he replied that it was essentially a tank war."

Beverbrook said, "We have made available the October quota of all things promised by us in the agreement signed in Moscow."

JOE WILL MAIL PENSION CHECKS

Court Rules Welfare Department Can't Have 'His' $75,000.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—The common pleas court held yesterday that $75,000 for mailing old age pensioners' checks could not be transferred from State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson to the welfare department without his approval.

The court at the same time dissolved an order which restrained the state board of control from certifying to Ferguson and the welfare department its action of Sept. 30 ordering Ferguson to surrender the money.

The legislature had transferred the function of mailing pensioners' checks from Ferguson to the welfare department but failed to transfer the postage money, and Ferguson declined to relinquish it.

the report showed. Already 2,400 workers have been laid off by Toledo plants with from 1,800 to 2,300 more lay-offs due if contracts are not obtained.

Definite furloughing of 2,860 workers in Dayton was reported by the bureau, while as many as 2,000 more face loss of their jobs.

Three hundred workers may be laid off in Ashland county due to metal shortages, and a definite layoff of 125 is scheduled for the county.

In Bucyrus, only 60 workers have lost their jobs so far, but an additional 400 may be affected by steel, scrap iron, and rubber shortages, the report said. A survey showed 51 per cent of the city's industries have defense contracts.

Results of the state bureau's industrial survey have been sent to the OPM at Washington in the hope that defense priorities may be released or more contracts for defense goods will be awarded Ohio manufacturers.

asserted, mentioning prevention of belligerent governments from soliciting money in the United States, establishing government control over munitions exports, and forbidding the use of the American flag by foreign ships.

A statement that Willkie did not represent majority Republican sentiment in his repeal proposal came yesterday from former Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania, who testified against the armed ship bill before the foreign relations group.

Senator Taft (R., Ohio), while declining to comment on Willkie's position, told reporters that "the amendment which has been laid before the senate for complete repeal of the act makes it necessary to cover the whole field of neutrality in the debate."

LIKES CARROTS

Eating Vegetables Regularly Got Joe Into Navy.

OKLAHOMA CITY—(AP)—Carrots, says Joe Passero, got him into the navy.

Joe was at the navy recruiting office at 7:30 a. m. on the day he was 17 years old, waiting for the recruiting officer to open the place. He wanted to enlist.

The doctors rejected him because of his eyesight and Joe went directly to an eye doctor. The specialist gave him corrective lenses and said he believed they would strengthen his eyes.

Joe wore the glasses every day. Then friends told him they had heard that the eating of carrots sometimes strengthened eyesight. So Joe ate carrots, as many as a rabbit. In fact he lived almost exclusively upon them for several weeks.

A month after his first visit he went back to the navy recruiting office. They tested his eyes and they were satisfactory.

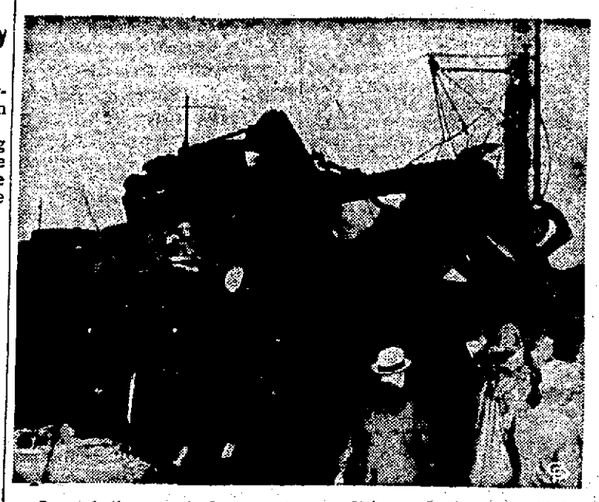
28 Injured In Jersey Rail Crash



One of the smashed cars of a New York-Philadelphia local train, sideswiped by a Washington limited near Rahway, N. J., is pictured above. None of 28 persons injured was in serious condition. Railroad officials said the accident occurred because the local failed to pull far enough onto a siding to allow the Washington-bound limited to clear.

Marion Oxen Lead Show Team Life, But They Can Pull

MARION—(AP)—A yoke of oxen owned by E. T. Snyder, farmer and stockbuyer residing east of Marion on route 95, lives the life of a show team.

Only occasionally does Snyder call on the oxen to work in the fields. Kept as a novelty, they lead an easy life on green pastures, vastly different from that of their ancestors who pulled covered wagons.

Snyder bought the oxen last fall in Spencer, W. Va., they weigh about 1,600 pounds each. They are four years old and should be good for from eight to twelve more years as work animals.

Last spring the animals were given an opportunity to display their enormous strength when a wagon mired in the soft mud of a cornfield. After a span of mules was unable to move the wagon a tractor was brought out, but the results were no better on the slippery ground.

Then the oxen were hooked to the wagon and under the encouragement of a lusty-lunged driver they settled down to a steady pull. The wagon came out of the bog.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 23, 1941.

It would be difficult for Americans to give up the right to find fault.

Those old street car rails make motoring hazardous on rainy days—they should have been removed long before this.

Liquor prices are advancing so rapidly that it might be a good idea to see what is "just around the corner" this time—it may be the bootlegger.

Hi, Massillon, Here We Come!

MANSFIELD'S greatest demonstration of football enthusiasm is scheduled to break out this afternoon and extend through tomorrow night's Mansfield-Massillon game.

Yesterday was marked by the disappointment of procrastinators failing to secure tickets for the game or for the special train—because of a complete sell-out.

It is estimated that approximately a thousand persons—including the high school band—will go to Massillon on the 15-coach special train, while 3,000, or more, adult and student "fans" will travel in motor vehicles.

Just a word of caution to those who drive. More important, even, than seeing the football game—or winning it—is the matter of SAFETY. It will be hoped by everyone that this happy occasion will not be marred by a traffic accident such as frequently occurs when highways are crowded and some drivers are careless.

Traffic congestion, in leaving Massillon and coming west tomorrow night, will be terrific. Moderate speed, coupled with constant watchfulness, will be necessary in avoiding damage to cars and possible injury to occupants.

Adults who go to the game by train will do well to remember that there will be a large number of high school boys and girls aboard—and that any of the liquor-induced hilarity sometimes associated with football victories (or sorrow-drowning in case of defeat) will reflect little credit upon those so indulging, in the eyes of those youngsters whose team will have either won or lost.

Rowdyism on the part of spectators will also reflect discreditably on the organization which is making the special train possible.

Win or lose, tomorrow night's game will be a memorable event in Mansfield football history. Let all Mansfielders who see the game—or participate in it—co-operate to make this an occasion which will bring no regrets.

'Common Colds' Are Too Common

EVERYTHING nowadays seems to be subject to a Gallup poll and a recent check-up by this method discloses that one-tenth of the American people—in one-fourth of the nation's homes—suffer from colds in any given week . . . with others coming along to fill the quota for next week, and each of the weeks thereafter.

The worst of it is that often a cold isn't merely a simple ailment. And it isn't necessarily self-terminating. It may involve not merely one kind of disease, but a wide variety of germs, with their sisters and their cousins and their aunts, coming along for the ride and eager to do the driving. As the patient's resistance is worn down, the more venomous passengers take their turn.

Yet modern medical knowledge is supposed to know how to control this enemy. People who keep themselves in good physical condition, by eating the right food and getting enough exercise and fresh air and sleep, and not overheating their homes and offices, seldom have bad colds. There are vitamin pills, too, that afford considerable protection, although they are not a complete substitute for healthful living and sensible diet.

More Pre-Halloween Misbehavior

CITY AND COUNTY law enforcement authorities are again directing attention to pre-Halloween rowdyism and destruction of property.

Halloween is intended as a one-night affair—and even then there are bounds beyond which celebrants are not expected to go.

Premature rowdyism can be regarded as nothing more than deliberate violation of law, which should be punished in the same way as other offenses.

The fact that ordinarily it is children who are offenders does not excuse the misconduct, although blame may be placed more heavily on lack of training than on the children themselves.

Russians Becoming Mechanics

THERE is a changed attitude in this country regarding the ability of Russians to become expert mechanics. During the early "five-year-plans" American technicians were always talking about the utter lack of mechanical talent in the Russian makeup. The Slavs didn't understand machinery and never would, it was said. Their efforts to become industrially important were doomed to failure on this account.

But evidently it was a mistake to regard Russians as permanently incompetent. They have kept supply lines open, tanks moving and planes flying, in this huge campaign against the super-technicians of Germany.

W. Averill Harriman said something about this in an interview in London after his trip to Moscow.

> "Our American airmen," he reported, "have been working with the Russians for the past months, showing them how to fly and maintain American aircraft.
> "They all reported the same thing: The Russian has become a first class mechanic in the last generation. Russia has learned to use the machine. We need have no fear of what will happen to American equipment, our airplanes and our tanks, that we send them: the Russians know how to take care of them and will use them efficiently."

Perhaps their slowness before was only the result of a gap in their education.

Hint to aspiring writers: The letters which Louis Bromfield wrote home from France during the first World war gave no indication that he would later attain to his present eminence as a writer. Also remember that he completed the manuscripts of three book-length novels before offering one for publication.

Because of metal shortage there will probably be fewer pins in new shirts—but even at that it will be just as well to look again.

Whoever said it first knew what he was talking about when he commented: "Chickens come home to roost."

That old saying, "In union there is strength," doesn't seem to apply to two unions.

Conscience Leads People to Pay

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — Strange things happen in Washington, but there is no recurrent phenomenon stranger than the facts packed into the treasury's "conscience fund."

Just 130 years ago, President Madison received a letter enclosing $5 and explaining that the sender wanted to pay up what he had cheated the government out of. Since then, nearly $700,000 has rolled into Uncle Sam's coffers in just this way.

It can't be said positively yet that world conditions and the national defense effort have had any effect on these conscientious donors, but 1941 has brought in sums running into the thousands and several have been inspired by government needs for defense funds.

A FARM woman, living near Wichita, Kas., mails in a money order for $5.80, saying, this is "to run the government in peace. It is not to be used for war to kill people."

A man from Milwaukee, Wis., comes up with this: "Enclosed you will find $500 I owe to our government for a period of years for income tax. Our government is very badly in need of money and my conscious (that's the way he spelled it) has been bothering me for some time. I am very sorry for the wrong I have done and thank God I may straighten it out this way. Many thanks."

The largest contribution to the conscience fund in recent months was from a nurse who has spent many years in Peking, China, and who visits her home in Charleston, S. C., once every seven years. She sent a check for $1,678, "the same being a year's salary plus interest which I do not now want to accept."

An investigation by secret service disclosed the nurse once had worked for the government (she refused to say where or in what department). She insisted that she idled away that year and didn't really earn the salary which she returned.

THE treasury's first conscience fund receipt from a soldier in the new army in training, came from Fort Benning, Ga. It was bills and change folded in a blank sheet of paper in the sum of $4.61. There was no explanation.

Often there is no explanation. There was the letter enclosing 24 cents with the simple, scrawled sentence: "I owe this to Uncle Sam, A Friend." And with a $100 bill from Sioux Falls, S. D., an almost illegible line, "For taxs to the government."

From Maywood, N. J., came a money order for $6.86 from a man on WPA. "I think everybody should pay taxes," he wrote, and the enclosed amount is one per cent of my year's wages from WPA."

Another $500 came from a deathbed. A pioneer North Dakotan's last request was that his daughter send the treasury $500. For many years he had had a wheat farm in Canada, and had run his grain across the line for sale in the United States without paying duty. He did not want to die with that cheat on his conscience.

THE money, doesn't always come directly to the treasury. A large part of it is sent to the president, with such varying salutions as "Dear F.D.R." and "Dear Mr. President, Your Highness."

WHERE the treasury can investigate, it does and occasionally the money goes back. An upstate New Yorker sent in $100. An investigation disclosed he was under observation in an institution for the insane. His obsession was that he owed everybody money and the $100 sent to Uncle Sam was only one of many payments he had made. The treasury department's check went to his wife, who was struggling to make a living for herself and a six-month-old baby.

Another treasury check went back to an old Kansas pioneer. Although living on nothing but the old age pensions paid him and his wife, he had scraped together $20 to reimburse the government "for driftwood and hay which I sold off river land adjoining a claim I settled in Kansas in 1884."

Listen World!

Listening to a Queen

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

THIS is a letter of thanks. An humble letter—and more than a bit ashamed—for a man I've never met but who has made me remember something I should never forget.

There's a Federal Penitentiary in Atlanta, Georgia. This man lived in that penitentiary. His name is Richard Jordan. He writes for "The Atlantian," the prison magazine—a lusty, honest, two-fisted publication which many a top-flight editor might envy. And when it comes to rugged technique, Richard Jordon has what it takes.

So imagine my surprise when I turned to his piece today and saw it titled, "A CON CAN LISTEN TO A QUEEN." "What goes on?" said I to myself. Then I felt my profile go red. For Richard Jordan wasn't spoofing or mooning. He was paying tribute to a small, gracious lady who moved all our hearts a few weeks ago . . . little Queen Elizabeth of England.

Remember the day she spoke, thanking all America for its generosity, asking quietly, but with deep feeling, for our further friendliness? She'd been, you could tell by her voice, a little frightened at first. I'd smiled and wondered, as any woman would, if she were clutching her tall husband's hand. One hopes—and it isn't silly—that love can be as comforting in high places as in low. Then her voice steadied . . . went on.

And now Richard Jordan, who'd listened from his cell, was telling what that far-off voice had meant to him. What had it meant? What did any gentlewoman's voice mean to a man shut off from the world? What did any lonely, discouraged man treasure most in womankind? Was it beauty? Wit? Dash? Streamlined smartness? Go-gettem power? I wondered. And, over the miles, this man I've never seen, answered me.

"I liked her gentleness," he said. "I liked her dignity—her honesty and simplicity. She gave us no extravagant phrases . . . no maudlin sentimentality. Her very restraint was more compelling than the wildest headlines. Her gentle earnestness gave to her words an appeal that disarmed all suspicion.

"There was no fanfare in that radio broadcast. All that we heard was a woman . . . a decent, wholesome, plain-spoken woman, relating the ills that had befallen her home, telling of the hope she had for their discontinuance, expressing a quiet faith in the will and ability of her neighbors to assist toward this end. Far more effective was this muted appeal than elegantly phrased requests . . . or gilded pomposities.

"I listened to a Queen. It was a queenliness acquired, not bestowed . . . democracy in its finest form. Every housewife and farmwife, every office worker and school teacher in America, understands that kind of queenliness . . . has it in herself."

I'm grateful to Richard Jordan for those words . . . grateful for all my sex. It's a puzzling job to be a woman these days. There are so many things a woman can be and do . . . silly and shallow things, often. But, out of a gentlewoman's fineness, and out of his reverence for that fineness, Richard Jordan showed me that there was only one thing a true woman should want to be. And that it:

A WOMAN, A WOMAN, GENTLE AND BRAVE AND KIND . . . LOVING AND LOYAL AND TRUE. WISE IN HER SIMPLICITY. STRONG IN HER TENDERNESS. A SHELTER FROM THE STORM. A QUEEN.

Thank you, Richard Jordan—and Elizabeth, nee Bowes-Lyon—for helping me remember something I often forget.

Roosevelt Now Putting Brakes On Bellicose Talking About Far East

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—White House advisers have noticed a significant change in the president during the present period of tenseness with Japan. It may be the natural cautiousness of any man upon whose shoulders rests the major decision of war. Or equally important, it may be the very cautious advice of Admiral Stark, chief of naval operations.

At any rate, the president, during recent days, appears to be putting the brakes on any bellicose talk about the Far East. A year or so ago, he was just the opposite, completely confident the Japanese were boxed in, cocksure his navy would have 'em on the run in any showdown.

But last week Admiral Stark painted a much more pessimistic picture, and the state department, always a bit appeasement-minded, chimed in with him.

However, by no means everyone in the navy agrees with Admiral Stark. Younger naval officers counter Stark's argument that the U. S. fleet is scattered all over two oceans by pointing out that the British now have seven big war units (many of them battleships) on the west coast which could be rushed into any battle of the Pacific.

And to the state department's argument that every month of waiting weakens the Japanese through our embargo on raw materials, these officers point out that every week of the Russian campaign weakens our chief potential ally in the Far East even more.

Finally, the younger group inside the navy believes that navy morale is now at its peak, has the support of American public opinion, and that morale will be in the doldrums if kept waiting too long. It would be natural to discount the enthusiasm of the younger officers, if it were not for the fact that Admiral H. E. Kimmel, commander-in-chief of the fleet, and one of the most important men in the navy, appears to agree with them.

Note: Three years ago, when it was proposed that the U. S. navy co-operate with the British in a long distance naval blockade to shut off the raw materials of war from the Japanese military clique, it was Admiral Stark who said "No." Admiral Leahy, former chief of naval operations, then governor of Puerto Rico, emphatically opposed him, always maintained that that was the time to act when the British fleet was in its prime, Russia had a strong fleet in the Pacific, and the United States had no worries about the Atlantic.

Won't Burn This Time.

DIPLOMATIC dispatches from Moscow report that the Soviet capital probably will not burn easily, except for one particular building. This is the American embassy. Because some of the structural materials are inflammable, the embassy is expected to burn like a lumber yard, if it should catch fire.

Furthermore it is a white structure standing out on the square opposite the Kremlin, an easy mark for bombers. That was one reason most of the embassy staff was moved out long ago.

The rest of Moscow, however, will not be easily destroyed, first because of the city's predominating brick and stone construction; second, because of the concentric circles of wide avenues which will prevent fires from spreading. Therefore, Moscow will not burn, though it may be pounded to pieces.

The Russians have concealed heavy artillery on the rolling hills around Moscow, and the fortifications are strong enough to prevent any rapid advance into the city. Therefore the Nazis are expected to attack chiefly by air and by starvation.

Encirclement of the city in the same manner that the Rumanian-Nazi army surrounded Odessa is sure to be Hitler's tactics.

Note—Military hindsight is always easier than foresight, and now it is known that one reason for the Nazi pounding of Leningrad in the north and Kiev in the south was to draw General Timoshenko's forces from the center. This ruse was successful. Timoshenko sent out wings of defense both to the north and south. Then the Nazis, with their greater mobility, withdrew part of their forces from Leningrad and Kiev, and rushed through the center.

Anti-Wheeler.

HERE is the inside story behind the report that Burt Wheeler would resign his senate seat and run for re-election to prove that Montana supports his isolationist crusade.

Wheeler's worries started when a state-wide poll conducted by the Great Falls News, previously strong for Wheeler, showed sentiment better than two to one against him. At first Wheeler pooh-poohed the poll. Later Representative James O'Connor, Wheeler henchman who is being groomed secretly to run against Senator Jim Murray, returned to Montana for a personal survey. O'Connor found so little isolationist sentiment that he lined up for the draft extension bill. Whereupon Wheeler decided to rush home himself.

What he found jolted him. Long the Democratic boss of Montana, Wheeler discovered he no longer ruled the roost. Some of the politicos were still giving him lip service, but most of the important organization leaders were against him.

Scared and furious, Wheeler launched two counter-bolts. One was the story, put out through a friendly press source, that he planned to resign and run against Murray, who comes up for reelection next year. The other move was a series of public meetings to woo back waning political support. Both moves boomeranged.

Instead of being frightened by the resignation story, the politicos challenged Wheeler to run. That was the last heard of the matter. At public meetings he was egged, booed and heckled.

So now Wheeler is secretly trying to organize a coalition of isolationist Republicans and Democrats to enter a full slate of state and congressional candidates under a new third party label, the "America First Party."

Note—One reason why political leaders laughed at Wheeler's threat to resign was that this automatically would make him lose his chairmanship of the powerful interstate commerce committee—a highly prized post which he uses constantly to aid the isolationist cause. It was through this chairmanship that Wheeler engineered the movie probe and named the isolationist-packed committee to conduct it.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—It's like this. A day in the life of a New York columnist is apt to begin late. But then it ends late too. Like today for instance. There was a wire from Gregory LaCava. "I think you and I have little unfinished business," it said. "Will you come hoist a glass with me at 21?"

That was good advertising. "Unfinished Business" is LaCava's newest picture. The director is resting now from his labors at the Pierre in New York. It was the first time I had seen him in five years. The last time we had lunch with Gunboat Smith, the old prizefighter. Remember Gunboat? Dempsey says the Gunner hit him the hardest blow of his ring career.

LaCAVA told of the time he directed Gunboat in a film out on Long Island. Richard Dix was in that one too. It was one of those old King Arthur tales; they had to hire some priceless armor for one of the knights from a museum. During one of the scenes the Gunner got his cues mixed a little. Instead of drawing old Excalibur he lapsed into a crouch and shot a hay-maker to the metal pit of the armored knight's tummy. The armor buckled, and steel fragments scattered. LaCava doesn't remember whether they ever made it all right with the museum or not.

Later, I hurried over to the Waldorf to Catch Paul Draper in his supper show at the new Wedgwood Room, where Eddy Duchin is playing. I feel it's understatement to call Paul Draper the best dancer in the United States, and I say this in full realization of the fine things that Fred Astaire has done.

BUT Draper is a genius and you have only to sit for five minutes and watch him illustrate such songs as "I've Been Working on the Railroad," and "Bicycle Built for Two," to realize it. Until you have seen him do minuets in tap you have seen very little. Draper is an artist with unbounded imagination and the dance stories he tells are as lucid as A, B, C. Only a part of it is inspiration, however. Mostly it's perspiration. He works like a dog

After midnight, I went to a USO party where scores of New York's finest entertainers volunteered their services. Carmen Miranda and some of her "Souse American Way" were there; Fred Waring was there with the glee club; Eddy Duchin, Xavier Cugat. The M. C. was Ted Husing, disguised as Father Knickerbocker, but Fred Waring let the cat out of the bag by addressing him as Father Husingbocker. It was a great success, with more than a thousand onlookers at $10 a plate. All of it went to the USO.

Out on the street, I looked at the clock and the hour hand pointed at 3. I bought a paper with a headline that shouted "REDS COUNTER ATTACK" in two-inch type. I caught a cab an went home.

Joseph Schildkraut has been spending a good part of his time hanging around projection booths in Broadway's movie houses. Not that Joe has the movie bug. In his new show, "Clash By Night," he plays the role of a movie machine operator.

Lanny Ross' secretary got busy on a calculator and came up with the statistical note that Lanny has sung 10,400 songs during the last two years. In his current series, he has sung exactly 2,369 numbers. That's a lot of singing.

A Farmer's Diary

Falling Leaves

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

OWING to fall drouth and the lateness of first frost, autumn has lacked some of its brilliance this year. Always the tall gums on the hill are first to cast some scarlet leaves. Then they stand in the gathering haze like flames of fire. The pin oaks along the border of the woods turn reddish purple; ash, hickory and tulip poplar become faded yellow; low sprouts of sassafras on the slope hang waving scarlet banners out beneath. Yet in all these varied colorings, there is no discord. Nature's gaudiness does not shock, but rather stirs admiration.

Autumn should not be, I think, a time of sadness and melancholy. It is, rather, a harvest festival. Their work is well accomplished, and the leaves deserve their long vacation.

How wonderful a leaf is! Leaves are the first and most necessary factories on this earth—they make life possible for all other living things. Compared with leaves, men are mere parasites!

Leaves do what nothing else can do—change the elements of air and soil and water into food for men and animals. Without them we should have no harvests—no coal beds, meats or cloth.

Traced back, all inventions of mankind rest solidly upon the latent energy transformed by leaves of plants. They change and combine gases of the air, water and minerals of the soil, the light and warmth of the sun, into forms which men adapt to make themselves 'civilized.' This manufacture of roots and fruits and seeds and grains from the chemical elements is the great creative miracle, constantly going on. Farmers of all men, are nearest to it—they cultivate field crops—and should be most in tune with Nature's forces.

When autumn comes, soft corky cells form a ring about the leaf stems and gradually cut off the tiny veins that feed the leaf and carry back the products of its manufacture to the roots or seed-pods. When these life strands are severed, the leaf is dead. Because it happens gradually, the colors change—green chlorophyll disintegrates and other elements make their presence known—the yellow carrotin, the red of some forms of sugar. Then leaves are loosened at the stem and sail away upon the strong west wind.

But to the thoughtful worker on the land who walks through autumn woods or across stubble fields, or among the shocks of corn, dry, brittle, rustling leaves are not sombre sights, but rather victorious tokens of an accomplished harvest. He walks among them thankfully, wonderingly, with great delight. He feels closer to the great Source of every good, and is proud to be a farmer.

If You Find It Hard to Sleep Try This One--

LOS ANGELES—(INS)—If counting sheep doesn't do any good when you can't get to sleep, you might try this one—

Take off your shoes and walk barefoot in the wet grass.

Dr. George Crowle of Los Angeles advanced this bit of advice at the 19th Annual National Chiropractic Convention. He said that insomnia is caused by the presence of too great an amount of blood in the head. Cold feet, he said, will draw the blood from the head.

For those not outdoor minded, the insomnia specialist suggested that a wet sock covered with a dry woolen sock also will do the trick.

The same treatment is a sure cure for headaches also, Dr. Cowle said.

GALION COUNCIL HOLDS SESSION

GALION — The consent ordinance giving the state highway department authority to improve East Church street from East street to Charles street, remained in the hands of the street and sewer committee, after council met last night. Carl J. Gugler, local attorney who is strongly in favor of passage of the ordinance, addressed council and urged that the ordinance be passed.

If the ordinance is passed by council, it is assumed that improvements of the street will be the first step toward a subway on East Church street at the Big Four railroad intersection, and the re-routing of 30-S through the city.

At the meeting last night, council amended the ordinance that determines the number, salaries, wages, compensation and bond of certain officers, clerks and employes in the fire department, electric light and power department and the water and municipal utilities departments.

Reprisals Fail to Halt Anti-Nazi Sabotage In France

EXECUTIONS MOUNT AFTER 2 SLAYINGS

Huge Fire Reported Set at Nantes, Trains Wrecked In Paris Area.

(Editor's Note: Herewith is one of a series of articles on underground anti-Nazi activities in German-occupied territory. Today's article deals with France, where assassination of the Nazi commander of Nantes, Lieut. Gen. Karl Holtz, has unleashed a terrible wave of Nazi reprisals

By MERRILL MUELLER
(INS Staff Correspondent)

LONDON—Anti-German sabotage in occupied France is increasing today—despite Nazi threats and reprisals and a wave of terrorism in retaliation for the assassination of Lieut. Gen. Karl Holtz, German commander of Nantes, and a German army major at Bordeaux.

(Editor's Note: Latest reports from Vichy stated the German overseers of occupied France ordered immediate execution by firing squads of 50 French "hostages" at Nantes in reprisal for the slaying of Holtz. It was announced that another 50 hostages will be shot if two young men hunted as the assassins are not apprehended by midnight Thursday, and that another 50 had been seized in the Bordeaux slaying.

(In addition, the Nazis levied a fine of approximately $450,000 on the population of Nantes. The money will be paid as a reward to any person or persons giving information leading to arrest of the killers.)

Anti-German sabotage in occupied France is growing in defiance of German threats to shoot 10 hostages for every German murdered. Already this campaign of "resistance" has cost 129 lives, according to an official tabulation.

It has led to arrest, imprisonment and concentration camps for 40,000 more persons who have fallen under Nazi suspicion.

But still the campaign goes on.

The latest report to reach free French headquarters is that the assassination of Holtz was preceded by a huge fire in Nantes which destroyed all the German army food supplies in that area.

The city was fined a reported 3,000,000 francs.

This report, incidentally, explained a blaze which had been a mystery to R. A. F. night fighters It also explained the increased motor traffic on northern French roads, for the Germans ordered armored and scout cars to maintain nightly patrols of vital areas.

These cars are now presumably enforcing the new curfew, just as armored cars enforce the restrictions imposed upon Paris.

The free French spokesman in London declared:

"But the sabotage goes on strongly. The Arras railway station was partially destroyed by a mysterious explosion and two large electrical plants there were dynamited recently.

"At Juvisy-Sur-Orge, south of Paris, the railway junction was beautifully fouled, according to our reports, and while the Germans were busy fixing it the railway lines in and around Paris continued to be wrecked.

"It is easy to wreck electric suburban railway lines and Frenchmen do not hesitate to do it.

"No less than 149 freight trains with German army supplies or products headed for Germany have been wrecked in the past two months and 1,800 cars of freight have been destroyed.

"Repeatedly minor sabotage breaks out at such plants as the Renault Factor, Chenard, Walker Hotchkiss, Hispano Suiza and Bleriot. The Germans are forcing the plants to manufacture goods for Nazi use."

During the German occupation the average Frenchman's life has been severely depleted of food and other means to carry on the fight from within, according to one report, which came from Paris and was dated in mid-September It reads:

"Since August we have had one meat day per month Rations for all canned pastes and for spaghetti, rice and potatoes have been completely suppressed and are unobtainable, while each day the walls of the red district are plastered with new twelve by eight-inch red and white German posters announcing more arrests or a death for sabotage."

NEW PROCESS

Sea Life Seen as New Field For Valuable Glycerine.

SEATTLE, Wash.—(U.P.)—Microscopic sea life soon may yield valuable glycerine for national defense according to Prof. Trevor Kincaid, University of Washington zoologist

After many experiments, a process has been perfected for obtaining the basic component of nitroglycerine from a species of plankton.—an oily form of marine life

Heretofore most glycerine has come from whales, but extravagant destruction of the huge mammals threatens ultimate extinction. Therefore, according to Kincaid, his experiments may aid in the ultimate conservation of the whale.

Plankton, on which the whale feeds, is obtainable in wide areas Approximately 10 per cent of plankton is glycerine, and Kincaid would extract the substance and store it in tanks

BALL 100 YEARS OLD

SANTA ROSA, Cal.—(U.P.)—Relics of Indian warfare of 100 years ago came to light near here when a one-pound cannon ball was found embedded in an oak tree and another one, weighing 1¼ pounds, was found on the banks of Metanzas creek. They were believed to have been fired by the forces of Salvadore Vallejo who led several military attacks against Indian uprisings around 1837 and 1838.

Dice-Shooting Among Indians Was Complicated

BERKELEY, Cal.—(INS)—Dice-shooting, a favorite pastime among the Shoshone Indians of Nevada, was pretty complicated.

There were different kinds of Indian dice and there were games predominantly for men and others for women.

One game played with dice made of eight long sticks, painted all red on one side and white on the other, was predominantly a man's game. Women played a game with four long-sticks dice, two of which were similarly marked and called "little ones," and two others distinctively marked and called "mother" and "father."

The women also had their game called "many dice" or "basket dice." The dice, made of short sticks, were generally oval and all painted alike.

A description of these dice games is contained in a new issue of Anthropological Records, published by the University of California Press.

Indiana Game Warden Meets Quick Thinker

WASHINGTON, Ind.—(INS)—Wallace Foster is a zealous game warden, but his ardor was cooled by an old man on White River near here.

Foster encountered the grizzling man seated on a log near the stream.

"Fishing?" inquired the game warden.

"Yep," the old fellow replied.

"How are you fishing?" Foster asked.

"Trout line. Got two of 'em stretched across the river."

"Having any luck?"

"Fair to middlin'. Got a nice string of cats."

"Have you a fishing license?" asked Foster.

"Nope," the man replied.

"Perhaps you don't know who I am," Foster said.

"Never seed you before; who are you?"

"I'm the game warden."

"The heck you are," the man said. "Maybe you don't know who I am."

"No, I don't know your name, but that makes no difference," said the officer.

"Well," said the man as he aimed a mouthful of tobacco juice at a can six feet away. "I'm the biggest liar on the river."

U. S. NAVY REPORTS MEN FROM PRAIRIES MAKE BEST SAILORS

(By International News Service)

KANSAS CITY — Men from the prairie states, many of whom have never been within a thousand miles of salt water, make the best sailors.

This is generally conceded by navy recruiting officers, who nevertheless are rather hard-put to explain this phenomen.

According to Lieut. Commander R. W. Holt, in charge of the Kansas City naval recruiting station, this may be due to several factors. Because of the fact that many youths from the Great Midwest are raised on farms they are more apt to understand machinery, firearms and weather conditions, Comander Holt said, adding:

"They are closer to the soil, and possibly appreciate it more. Similarly, many leaders of finance and industry on either coast have an early farm background."

Whether implying that the youths may be more eager to defend their soil or to get away for a change, the officer declined to surmise.

In line with this belief that recruits from this area make good seamen is the word that the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce is co-operating with the navy department in a drive for new applicants. Mayors and service clubs in nearby communities throughout Kansas and Missouri have been contacted, and navy days are to be arranged by the C. of C. at which service officials will speak and films will be shown by various groups.

Further evidence of this interest in Midwestern recruits may be observed in the newspaper campaign being conducted in communities of less than 50,000 population throughout Missouri, Indiana and Iowa. In a recent address before Kansas City advertising men, Representative Bruce Barton, of New York, said the plan already was showing results and was to be extended throughout Kansas, Nebraska and Kentucky.

In the initial three states brought under the plan, the navy is spending $340,000 in newspaper advertising alone. The publicity already has produced results, the congressman said, adding that recruiting has not yet provided sufficient men to meet requirements of 12,000 a month from the entire nation.

Capt. F. E. M. Whiting, in charge of recruiting, said the two-ocean fleet—now coming off the ways—needs approximately 100,000 men. At present the monthly average enlistment approaches 9,300 men.

Capt. Whiting added a word to potential draftees, saying: "Men who will be called under the selective service act can enlist in the navy or naval reserve for the duration."

A coal field at Keokee, Va., abandoned for 19 years, has been reopened.

SPECIALTY IS HALL RUGS

NEW ORLEANS—(U.P.)—Police in this city are faced with a special problem—finding the boy who passes over jewelry and money but takes the hall rug. Police investigation shows that the thief usually spots an expensive rug in a home. He cuts out the screen on the parlor window; enters, moves aside the furniture and calmly rolls up the rug and leaves.

GEN. JOHNSON:

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON—If my mail and contacts and what I hear of those congressmen are any criterion, a very unpleasant situation is gathering speed and volume in this country — like a snowball on a mountainside which could become an avalanche.

Johnson

It isn't so much a protest against so-called "priorities unemployment" as it is of the arbitrary and unplanned nature of the defense restrictions which, if not in some way softened will wipe out or tragically cripple all but the greatest business corporations in this country and impose burdens not yet dimly dreamed on the entire civil population.

This writer has been intimately familiar with most of the recent emergencies in Washington—before World War One, while it was going on, in the immediate post-war and industrial depression, in the much greater 1929 depression, during the formation of the New Deal, throughout the groping, fumbling approach to World War Two—and now.

In each greater or lesser crisis, it tended to become a madhouse, but, compared with the situation today, the appropriate incidental music would have been "Calm Sea and Happy Voyage."

Just now it is a madhouse from which the roof has been taken off and all the witches and their familiars have been invited in to celebrate Walpurgis night in an orgy of utter confusion.

The hotels are crowded with frantic or dispirited people, eager to cooperate, but unable to find out what they can or can't do or what is expected of them.

Rising prices, confiscatory taxes, with no end in sight, they can understand and expect. But the increasing denials to them of materials, transportation, power with which to conduct their business, even on a skeleton basis, threaten a sentence of economic death—to them and many of their employes. This is much harder for anybody to understand, and the stern necessity for it, if it exists, has simply not been "sold" to them.

Belatedly Mr. Odlum has been called in to "preserve the small business man" by spreading defense orders. Anybody who knows anything about war production is aware that this is a worthy, but almost worthless gesture.

So little sub-contracting can produce efficient results. So many—by far the bulk of these people can't take defense business. They are not equipped for it.

It is a long and difficult task to change over a plant from one type of production to something entirely different. Neither can employes trained in one specialty be easily adapted to another. In addition, by far the majority, such as retailers, wholesalers can't take this kind of work at all.

Mr. Odlum has no experience in this type of industry or administration. He seems to be as bewildered as the dazed people who look to him rather hopelessly for help.

How long can yu do this sort of thing and how far can you go? I don't know, but people who talk about 50 billions of war production annually and have no answer to the necessitous requirements of our civilian population except "let them do without" would do well to pay some heed to this situation

PLAN MISSIONS TO SPEED AID FOR NEAR EAST

Administration Quarters Talk Sending Officials To Russia, Iran, and Egypt.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Administration quarters are studying plans for sending large-scale technical missions to Russia, Iran and Egypt to speed deliveres of lend-lease materials and to insure their most effective use against the Axis, it was learned today.

The missions would:

1. Arrange for prompt unloading and transfer of American supplies to armed forces in the three countries.

2. Develop transportation and facilties such as depots, repair shops and air bases.

3. Instruct foreign troops in proper handling, assembling, maintaining and repairing American-built planes, tanks and guns.

The tentative plan calls for dispatch of American military officials to the three countries at once to make preliminary plans for a broader program in which thousands of American civilians will be used later, an informant said.

The plan for such missions was learned as the maritime commission revealed that in the future all American shipments to Russia would go via Boston to Archangel on the White sea. It was understood that for the present no more American ships would go to Vladivostok in Siberia with war supplies.

These developments were believed to be the prelude to an attempt to pour large quantities of American war equipment into Russia for the Red army through Archangel—the nearest port to the Leningrad and Moscow fronts.

The transportation problem of getting supplies to the Red army is most difficult and it was believed that the decision to ship through Archangel and the plan for technical missions might be inter-related.

The plans for the missions were understood to have been discussed by the American supply mission headed by W. Averell Harriman and a British group led by Lord Beaverbrook during recent conferences in Moscow. A similar mission has been in China for several weeks under the direction of Brig. Gen. John MaGruder.

Robert F. Myers is only six weeks old but he has already set a precedent among infants his age by cutting two front teeth. The young son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy F. Myers, 484 Rembrandt street, cut a lower front tooth when he was only two weeks old and another appeared next to it a short time afterward. "Ordinarily babies do not cut their teeth until they are three months old," said Mrs. Myers, who is also the mother of a daughter, Nancy, aged two.

A burning strawstack that sent up thick clouds of smoke from the J. Dick farm south of Shelby yesterday afternoon attracted scores of spectators and kept the Shelby fire department busy saving a barn and other nearby out-buildings. Although the flames scorched one side of the barn, firemen kept them from getting a start in the building. Spectators were interested in watching the firemen loop a long chain over the top of the burning stack and pull it away from the barn with a truck. Deputy sheriffs believed the blaze started from a match carelessly thrown into the straw.

SEVEN RESCUED AFTER CRAFT TURNS TURTLE

Coast Guard Sent To Help; Victims Believed Asleep as Accident Occurred.

(By Associated Press)

DETROIT—Six crew members of the Great Lakes Towing company's tug "America," from Toledo, drowned early today when the vessel sank while attempting to move a grounded freighter from a mud bank in the Detroit river.

Harbormaster's police, who assisted in the rescue of seven crewmen, said the drowned men apparently were asleep below decks when the "America" overturned. Officers said they did not know what caused the tug to capsize, but believed a fouled or broken towline from the tug to the grounded freighter might have been responsible.

The dead were identified as: Harry Lamb, Toledo; Fred King, Toledo; Frank McPherson, Port Huron, Mich.; Nelson Winne, Toledo; Ray Paul and William Deforrest, both of Sault Ste. Marie.

Rescued were Capt. Ralph Millard, manager of the Toledo office, Great Lakes Towing company, and member of the Toledo board of education; Raymond Damas, captain of the tug, Toledo; John Herrman, Milwaukee; Edward Thrombley, Detroit; George Bunker, Toledo; Walter Vizneau, Toledo, and John A. Miller, Fort Wayne, Ind.

The rescued men were brought to Toledo, where Captain Millard, suffering from chest injuries and hysterical, was taken to Women's and Children's hospital. He was in pilot house of the tug when it overturned.

Coast guard cutter No. 173 was sent to the rescue, along with the coast guard tender Tamarak and several police boats.

Witnesses on shore said the "America" was resting in shallow water, its funnel and superstructure still visible.

Detroit coast guard officers said the tug was one of three that have been attempting to remove the 530-foot steamer from a mud bank near Peche island. The freighter, downbound with a cargo of iron ore, went aground early Tuesday in a heavy fog, after its anchor failed to take hold.

SEEK TO SAVE BIOFF, BROWNE

Attorneys Start Action Today In Effort To Keep Clients Out of Federal Prison.

NEW YORK — Attorneys for George E. Browne and William Bioff began their efforts to save them from federal prison tody.

Judge John C. Knox hears defense motions this afternoon to dismiss the indictments. If he doesn't the jury will return tomorrow and the defendants' lawyers will begin calling their witnesses.

Although Brown and Bioff, president and West Coast representative respectively, of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes (AFL) were charged in indictments with shaking down four motion picture companies for $550,000, United States Attorney Mathias F. Correa indicated that the total of the alleged extortions was $801,000.

That included, according to the indictments and to testimony, mostly from officials of these companies: $100,000 from Nicholas Schenck, president of Loew's, Inc., $100,000 from Harry Warner, president of Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc.; $90,000 from Sidney Kent, president of Twentieth Century-Fox.; $100,000 from Austin C. Keough, vice president, secretary, director and general counsel of Paramount Pictures, Inc.; $236,474 in "commissions" on raw film, and $100,000 to end a projectionist strike in New York in 1935.

The trial began on Oct. 8 and the government concluded its case yesterday afternoon.

Keough testified yesterday that he had paid Bioff $100,00 in installments of $7,500 to $20,000.

Corn Huskers In Nearby Counties Compete In Meet

Two county champion cornhuskers from northcentral Ohio were among the 21 contestants who went into a 274-acre field near Urbana today to compete for honors in the annual Ohio husking contest.

Reuben Pritchard was entered from Crawford county and Walter Lemmel from Ashland county. There will be no entry from Richland county and no elimination contest. In county competition, Pritchard "shucked" 1,586 pounds of corn in 80 minutes and Lemmel husked 1,229 pounds in the same period.

Contestants in today's meet were husking from the shock. Twenty-one entries will return to the same field tomorrow to husk standing corn. The state winner in tomorrow's competition will be eligible for the national husking contest early in November in LaSalle county, Illinois.

A crowd of 30,000 was expected today and a slightly larger attendance was predicted for Friday. Farm implement dealers and farm organizations set up exhibits on the grounds, giving the exhibition the appearance of a fair.

Floyd Gale, Delaware county shock husking champion in 1940, was in the field early today to defend his title. The best county record was held by Paul Shaner, Licking county, who husked 1,870 pounds in 80 minutes.

Study Conversion Of Normandie to Aircraft Carrier

NEW YORK —(INS)— The gigantic 83,423-ton French luxury liner Normandie may be converted soon into a super aircraft carrier for the United States navy, it was learned today.

Navy technicians have completed a structural study of the vessel, and have concluded that she could be changed into a plane carrier within six months. Technicians point out that two years or more are required for the construction of an aircraft carrier.

Such a conversion, it was reported, awaits only the government's final decision to requisition French ships. At present, the liner is under "protective custody" of the coast guard.

The navy survey revealed that the $63,000,000 liner was built with the idea that her top-deck could easily be converted into a flight-deck. Funnels can be removed, and a flight-deck built along most of her 1,029-foot length without affecting her propulsion machinery or internal operation.

If converted, the Normandie would become the largest and fastest aircraft carrier afloat. She is believed capable of 35 knots.

Russian Mud Gums German Advance

There can be little doubt that mud like this is slowing the German advance in Russia. The photo of Nazi tanks and trucks plowing through the sticky goo of the eastern front was released by Berlin.

Chained Wife, 19, to Bed

Neal Cahoon, 62-year-old farmer, has been jailed at Vandalia, Ill., on charges of falsely imprisoning his 19-year-old wife, Rose, mother of a two-month-old baby, by chaining her to a bed in their farm home. Mrs. Cahoon, found bound to the bed with log chains, refused to prosecute her husband. The young woman was found chained when Sheriff C. F. Cheshier went to Cahoon's home after arresting him on a charge of assault. The assault charge was filed by three railroad employes who said Cahoon had forced them to sign a confession that they had been intimate with Mrs. Cahoon.

Japanese Battleships on the Move in Crisis

Japanese warships were reported off Saigon, French Indo-China, as relations between Japan, the United States and Britain appeared near the breaking point as a result of Japanese acquisition of bases in southern Indo-China from France. A Japanese battleship squadron, led by the Huso and the Kirisima, World War battleships, is pictured during South Pacific maneuvers. (Central Press)

The King Likes Jam

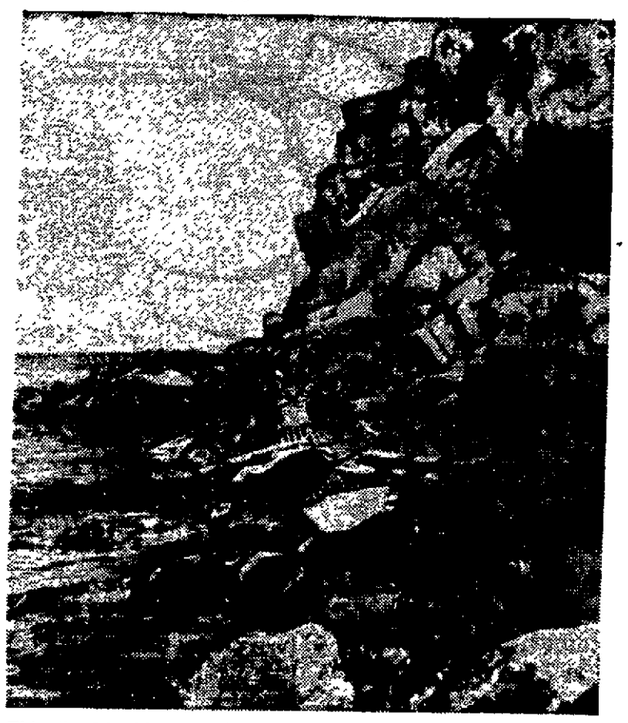
Monocled King George of Greece flicks his fingers after sampling a jam puff at presentation of a mobile canteen to Princess Helena Victoria, president of the National Women's Auxiliary of the YMCA, in London. The canteen, presented by King George, is the first to be staffed entirely by Greeks.

Brothers Under Two Flags

These brothers are both doing their bit to help stop Hitler, but they're serving under different flags. Pictured at a brief reunion in the Seattle home of their mother, they are Patrick McHugh (left), a Royal Canadian Air Force flier, and Frank McHugh, U. S. Army sergeant.



This pile of dead horses and assorted war materials, according to Berlin, is all that remains of a Russian column of supplies, pushed off a cliff near the Estonian port of Baltiski to keep it out of German hands.

British Decorate Two American Eagles

Two members of the American Eagle Squadron, which is serving with the Royal Air Force, are shown (right) in England receiving congratulations from other members of the squadron after being decorated with the Distinguished Flying Cross for heroic exploits in the air. They are Flight Officer G. A. Daymond (left) and Flight Lieut. C. G. Peterson. (Central Press)

Indians Object to the Draft

Members of six Indian tribes appeared in federal court in New York protesting against the government drafting members of the Iroquois Confederacy into the army. To do so, declared counsel for the Indians, would be a flagrant violation of the treaty of 1784 between the U. S. and the Iroquois Confederacy. Counsel for the Indians argued that the Confederacy is an independent, unconquered nation, subject to its own lawmakers. Attorney Wilfred E. Hoffman is pictured with Harry Patterson, left, of the Tuscarora tribe and Ivan A. Burnham of the Mohawk tribe.

CHAPTER III

"What?" The shouting made ny conversation difficult; thun-er and rain added to the motor's oar.

"I say I am sure you'll like rontier."

"Oh. Yes. If the Indians don't calp me."

"Don't be childish, Joy! You now the west is as modern as lew York."

"And you know when I am easing! Or do you, Tootsy?" The Tootsy" was Joy's pet nickname or her dignified secretary.

"I never quite understand you, hild. No one does!"

"Why did you pick Arizona for ie?"

"To get you away from—"

"'It all', is the phrase Tootsy! ou know. Mad city life. Sin and ex and superficiality, hunh? nly I wasn't doing any of them."

"But darling!" Bettina was dis-ressed. "Of course you were ever sinful, or ugly in any way. ou are just impulsive and you ere doing far too many things. Ve must guard your health, ear!"

"Was I ever sick?"

"Well, no. But, your mental ealth. Emotional health. You re very young, Joy darling. It my responsibility to see after ou. And as I have lectured you efore, America is not all on the tlantic seaboard."

"Joy smiled impishly. "Are you ire, Aunt Tootsy?"

"You were making a spectacle f yourself, at nineteen! I may well be frank: Buying a night lub! Flying alone to London! hy you even tried to stowaway ith Admiral Byrd when he went Antarctica! Joy, dear, young irls do not go in for—".

"Okay, Tootsy, okay. I'll be-ave. Maybe the west does have omething, at that. I've never issed an Indian."

"Joy Kathryn!"

"Nor a cowboy, Aunt Tootsy. rontier university sounds di-ine. I shall wear chaps. Or maybe a buffalo robe and coon-skin cap. If ever we get there at all, I mean. I'm beginning to doubt it."

* * *

Her voice trailed off into seri-ous tone. Plainly, too plainly, Joy was making bright talk to keep spirits up. Outside their windows clouds poured by, streaming behind the propeller's drive. Miss Carlson watched while Joy did this and that to her controls. The instrument panel seemed to hold the girl's atten-tion more and more and her face had that set, determined look.

"Is—is everything all right, dear?" Miss Carlson ventured.

"We ought to be at Phoenix. Is it in the mountains?"

"Phoenix is in a broad flat val-ley, dear. I have been there. And the map shows it so."

"Whew!"

"What, dear?"

"I say, peek out all you can, Tootsy. I—well, to tell you the truth, the instruments are dead. The radio, I mean. Storm, and mountains. They wreck things. No beam. No visibility. Nothing!"

"Do you mean—?"

Joy nodded, slowly, emphatic-ally. "No point in fooling our-selves. We're on a spot!"

"Whatever shall we do?" Miss Carlson was beginning to show alarm now.

"Look for a landing. I saw one bit of hope."

"What?"

"Away down. The clouds open-ed. There was an F on a moun-tain. A white F and maybe some-thing else; I couldn't tell. Only a glimpse."

"I shall watch closely. You drive with care."

"Are you cold? I can turn up the heat."

"Only with fright."

"Don't be scared. I have a lit-tle fuel left."

"A little!"

"Tootsy! Don't crack up. You're supposed to be the one who does the comforting."

"I am not afraid for myself, Joy!" The new tone in the older woman's voice struck Joy Boone forcefully. The girl knew what she said was true. She reached back quickly to squeeze Miss Carl-son's arm in thanks.

* * *

Part of the storm driving now at them was harder than rain. Hail-stones peppered the beautiful monoplane like buckshot, and Joy knew they could be almost as dangerous. She ripped gray-silver clouds open. Her altimeter caused her alarm. If Arizona's mountains ranged up to 12,000 feet as the maps and charts said—!

"I've got to get higher!" she suddenly whispered, to herself.

She tilted her ship up and gunned it—rn-rn-rn-Rn-Rn-RN—RN—its fine motor sounded off in crescendo. Bettina Carlson paled. She had flown enough with Joy, and had common sense enough, to realize that this was an emerg-ency move. But even as Joy had done she resolved to maintain a front of calm.

"You must w-write to your friends immediately, dear," she yelled, struggling for control. "My, its colder up here! Alfred will want to hear. In fact—LOOK, Joy! I saw it! I saw the white F again With a white arrow point-ing from it!"

"What direction? Quick!"

"Oh!" Miss Carlson, wide-eyed, didn't answer for a long moment. Then she just shook her head, gripping her seat in unceasing ten-sion. They had been shrieking in each other's ears, above the mo-tor.

Joy understood. North up here might be any way. Even she, a skilled pilot, couldn't be sure; and the climb and the storm would surely confuse Bettina. She said no more. The clouds were a bil-lowy sea now, and the wind was snatching the ship as if it were a fragile thing of pasteboard.

She leveled off when she thought it safe to do so and tried circling again. She looked at her fuel gauge. Her heart all but froze within her!

"I've got to go back!" she whis-pered. "It's the last chance!"

The forced climb had almost emptied her tanks. Time aloft now would be measured in min-utes, Joy knew. Presently—all too soon—her motor would begin to spt-t-t, spt-sptt. They would be-gin that helpless sinking as the gasoline supply ended.

Arbitrarily she coasted slowly back down. It was as if she had been stunting, showing off, having fun as Joy Boone was wont to do. Miss Carlson looked at her in fresh alarm.

"Joy!"

"Sit tight, Tootsy! And—strap that parachute on!"

"JOY!" She fairly screamed it now.

"You heard me! Do as I say! Quick!"

"But you—you!"

"Put yours on! You'll have to go first. Don't you see? The ship would foul us!"

"There's only mountains, and the thorniest cactus plants and rocks on the valley. Or—or—oh Joy! I won't leave you here."

"I'll say you won't! Aunt Tootsy, the gasoline's nearly gone. Where could I possibly land? If we drift any lower it will be too dangerous for the 'chutes. Now remember—jump, and pull the ring. I've told you how easy it is. Don't be afraid! Kiss me and go!"

"You'll follow?"

"Yes! GO!"

* * *

It was as near to grandeur as Bettina Carlson ever achieved, this moment. She was fearful of jumping herself, yes, but she was more fearful of refusing. She knew Joy would never go first. Never! To stay would mean death for both, so—

Courageously she opened the tiny cabin door and threw herself out, gripping the parachute ring. The formless mystery of the storm engulfed her.

Joy Boone was sobbing. She glanced once more at her fuel gauge. If only—if only—!

The moment stretched. She drifted down farther through the whining, menacing wind and ice and water. The monoplane trem-bled. Then, almost miraculously, the driving storm ceased in an in-stant. She glanced out.

Her heart leaped in terror. To her right was a sheer rock cliff which plainly had broken the force of the storm.

But, worse, ahead of her a few hundred yards and to her left as well loomed an extension of that same rock wall. Flying blindly, she had trapped herself in a box canyon! It yawned now like a veritable chasm of death.

How to Lessen The Fatigue of Keeping House

Who works harder, the homemaker or the woman employed in an office or industrial plant?

There's no verified answer on record for that question but there's little doubt that the average housewife is more tired out at the end of her working day than is her employed sister. One reason is that employers have found it profitable to them to combat fatigue among their workers.

The homemaker, too, can lessen the strain of her daily tasks by adapting some of the industry-proven methods to her own routine. Here are some recommendations by noted health authorities:

Plan your work in advance to distribute it evenly through the week.

Break up the day with regular rest periods. Take the weight off your feet. Sit down or lie down. Read a book or listen to the radio. The important point is to relax.

Make as liberal use of labor saving devices as possible.

Learn the way to do each job with the minimum of strain, then do it the same way each time.

Put your working conditions on an efficient basis. Arrange shelves so that there will be as little reaching and bending as possible. Have plenty of light where it is needed.

Remember that getting plenty of sleep is the best safeguard against fatigue. A tendency to wilt before an ordinary day is over is often a sign of insufficient sleep. Make sure that your mattress, bedspring and pillows are in a condition to give good service.

The actual number of hours spent in sleep, most authorities agree, is not as important as how much rest you get during the time you are asleep.

Pitfalls of Love

(A sequel to Marriage Meddlers)
By ADELE GARRISON

I CAUGHT my breath at my father's calm statement, in relief so intense that it was like a sharp pain. Ever since that awful moment in the train, when Carolyn's "collegiate ganster boy friend," as Dicky had dubbed him, had tried to get away from me that code letter to Ronald, I had lived in constant fear that he had been able to communicate with Marion's captors and tell them of the conversation he must have overheard, which would have revealed to him that Marion had written her letter in a code to which Mary alone had the key.

I knew better, however, than to put any questions to my father. I had tried him enough since we came to Lillian's.

Ordered To "Rub Out" Madge.

"In the first place," he said, "the man who choked you in the hotel is only a minor cog in the machine; a gun man, a hired killer, who knows only that when he receives orders from somebody higher up he must carry out those orders or take the consequences.

"It took some time—and persuasion" — his voice, I fancied held a sinister note that chilled me—"to find out just what his instructions had been and from whom he received them. But he finally became amenable to reason and told us that he had received a message from his boss that he was to go to your room at the Lansfield—you were fully described to him—and tell you to give him the letter. He was told that you would understand, and he was also instructed that if you gave any trouble you were to be 'rubbed out.'"

"More persuasion gave us the name and location of his boss. I think we finally convinced him that he was in more danger with us than with his boss, also that we would be able to protect him if he did squeal.

"Incidentally he is now a badly scared killer, who will be held by us in protective custody until we can ship him out of reach of his boss. We'll keep faith with him while he's with us, and even after we have no farther need of him. He was the first link in the chain.

"His boss is the second," my father's even voice went on. "We were lucky in picking up the first link speedily and bringing him down to the Village hideaway.

"He proved amenable to persuasion"—again I fancied the sinister note—"but said he was unable to give us any clue to the higher-ups in this affair, and I really believe his ignorance is genuine.

"He did reveal, however, that he is the head of a gang of gunmen who guarantee any specified bit of work for various gangs of the underworld.

Got Orders By Telephone.

"He said that a man telephoned him from Dalemont, a man who had used him before, and told him that if, inside of two hours, he did not receive another message from the same man countermanding the first order, he was to send a man to the Lansfield to get the letter from you.

"He said he knew the man who telephoned him only as "P. Q," and we did not press him on that point. We let him go, and are having him efficiently trailed. He will be of more use to us free than in custody. And if I know his breed, he will make no report to the man employing him except that the man he sent to do the job has disappeared."

He stopped and looked at me with what in a less tragic stress I would have called a twinkle in his eyes. If it were, I told myself hotly, I resented it as sheer torture, for he had not yet told me why he believed Marion's captors did not yet know her letters were in code, which they would deem a 'double-crossing,' with all the terror that term implies.

Train Gangsters Also Caught.

"You have a very resourceful husband, my dear," he said at last, and every nerve in me sprang to attention again. "When he saw the young gangster upon the platform at Dalemont, he guessed what he meant to do and made plans accordingly. Using my name, he got in touch with the state troopers and set a cordon along the track at about the mileage where he reasoned it would be feasible to dump the gangster without money or identification, and with his shoes tied in knots.

"The troopers picked him up and are holding him until our men can get there to take him over. This captive's only theme song was to be permitted to telephone. He said that life and death hung on it."

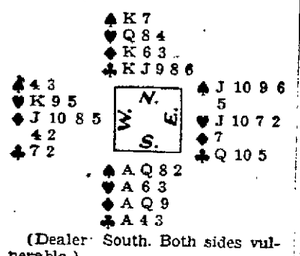
"The Authority on Authorities"

APPLYING THE PENALTY

AN INFRACTION of Law by one of your opponents is supposed to be penalized. That much is obvious, as penalties are provided in the laws governing the game. But on many occasions, they allow you an option. a choice of any one of several different penalties. Ability to select the effective one, and then to play so that it really counts, may be listed among the assets of a thoroughly rounded master player. Inability to handle such matters well is conversely a weakness.



(Dealer South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
2 NT	Pass	4 ♣	Pass
4 NT	Pass	6 NT

There was no report of the bidding, or how South got into the 6-No Trumps, but he was one of the world's greatest players, Walter Malowan, of New York, and he got a chance to show his acumen in a most unusual manner. West led the diamond J, dummy putting on the K and East, not paying attention, playing the spade 5 because he thought a spade had been led.

This gave Mr. Malowan a choice. He could either compel East to play his highest or lowest diamond to the trick, or he could waive those options and treat the incorrectly played card as a "penalty card." This last is the option he took, thereby compelling it to be placed face-up on the table, to be led or played the first time it could be done so legally. Then Mr. Malowan executed his plan.

He came to his own hand with the club A and led the club 3 to the J. When East won this with the Q, the rules compelled him to lead the spade 5. That ran to the 7. Consequently Mr. Malowan took four tricks in spades, one in hearts, three in diamonds and four in clubs to make his needed 12. Without the trick gained this way, the only play for a 12th trick was a Vienna Coup, hoping to find the heart Q and four spades in the same hand, but it would have failed because each defender could have guarded one of those two suits

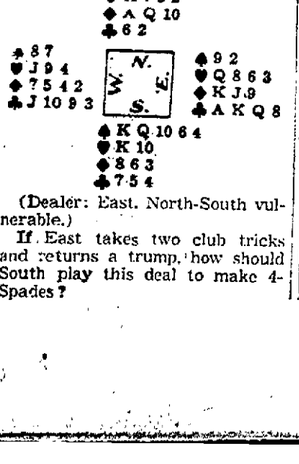
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable.)

If East takes two club tricks and returns a trump, how should South play this deal to make 4-Spades?

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, Oct. 24.

With certain intriguing and tricky situations duly sidestepped the auguries for this day should hold a moderate degree of promise. However there may be menaces of all sorts of treacheries, distortions, confusions and pitfalls to be rigidly guarded against. Wiles and crafts of various natures may lure to extravagance or indulgences, eventually assuming a legal aspect. Sign papers wisely.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year in which every step may challenge their probity, integrity, prudence and sound sense in maintaining a safe and sane balance. There are signs of so many different kinds of lures, frauds, impositions and treacheries that it will probably take much precaution and stamina to sidestep confusion and chaos as well as legal entanglements and financial losses. Loss of caste and prestige as well. Confer with superiors or avowed friends in such difficulties. Shun extravagance and doubtful excesses.

A child born on this day may have many subtleties of character, with a pleasure and luxury loving tendency, which should enlist strict supervision and analysis in its youth.

THREE SCHOOL DISTRICTS TO VOTE ON PLAN

Bellville, Butler Areas, and One In Morrow County To Decide Centralization.

Voters in the Bellville and Butler village school districts in Richland county and the Perry-Congress Rural district in Morrow county will be asked to approve centralization of the schools at the Nov. 4 election.

Under the centralization plan, any group of property owners who want to transfer to another district can do so only by the approval of a majority of the voters in the district from which they want to withdraw.

Supt. D. D. Rummell of the Bellville schools, urging support of the centralization plan, said "It will protect the present district as it has been set up, thus providing a good working unit and tending to keep taxes at a low rate."

He pointed out that the withdrawal of groups from a district for personal reasons and without the consent of the district makes the school operation costs higher per capita in the district and tends to increase taxes on real estate and personal property.

A statement issued by members of the Perry-Congress board of education said: "Centralization will tend, by laws that apply only to centralized school districts, to preserve the size and independence of our school district as it now stands."

It requires only a majority vote to approve the centralization plan in a district since it does not directly involve the expenditure of tax funds.

Scientists Study Private Lives Of Bacteria Family

BERKELEY, Cal. —(INS)— The private lives of a family of bacteria which breathe carbon dioxide instead of oxygen are undergoing close scrutiny by University of California scientists.

The microscopic organisms are known as methane-producing bacteria. They died upon exposure to oxygen, just like human beings succumb to an overdose of carbon dioxide.

Dr. H. A. Barker, assistant professor of soil microbiology, has invented a system of keeping the microbes in a laboratory without danger of their being affected by oxygen. He feeds them a menu of alcohol, carbon dioxide, ammonia, phosphorus and hydrogen sulphide in a solution.

The microbes have a major chemical task. They are found in swamps and elsewhere where organic matter is decomposed without free oxygen. They produce methane gas—the ordinary household gas—from organic matter.

Methane bacteria are like green plants in that both use carbon dioxide. Plants use it to make sugars, fats and other energy foods, whereas the bacteria use it to produce methane. Until recently it had been thought that only plants could use carbon dioxide.

MILKED AS BOMBS FALL

LONDON, Eng.—(U.P.)—While German planes bombed a refugee train and brought it to a temporary standstill, one of the passengers, Mrs. Renes Thorn, Belgian wife of Arthur Thorn of Dovercourt, Essex, slipped from the train, milked a cow in an adjoining field and returned unharmed with several beer bottles full of milk for babies on the train.

The Navajo Indians of Arizona and New Mexico, famed as silversmiths, learned the art from Mexicans they captured about the middle of the 19th century.

ORE DEMANDS BEGIN TO TAX LAKES FLEET

Canadian Ships Sought To Meet Rising National Defense Needs.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—(U P)— The combined Great Lakes freighter fleets of the United States and Canada soon may be pressed into service to insure delivery this year of more than 75,000,000 tons of ore, vitally needed in the defense programs of both countries

While the American ships have been bearing the brunt of Great Lakes ore shipments, several operators feel that a fleet of 40 vessels from Canada would be welcomed into American service.

Thus far U. S. ore-carrying boats have been meeting the increasing demands for steel and ore and have carried more than 15,000,000 tons to steel companies in lower lake regions.

This was effected through what ship captains term "sailing light to the head of the lakes"—returning from steel-making ports to the ore-loading docks without a cargo. Some captains report this can save at least two days on a round trip from the head of the lakes at Duluth to the Lake Erie docks.

However, a hint of the decline in shipping is forecast. Coal operators are demanding that the vessels return with coal cargoes, which, if carried out, would require the extra two days delay.

Vessels now can make the trip to the head of the lakes--without cargoes—load with ore, and return in eight days. A two-day layover would be necessary for the ships to take on coal.

Coal interests say return shipments of the fuel are necessary to ease the railroad car shortage situation.

Buffalo vessel operators pointed to a record shipment of ore during May—11,081,199 tons. By carrying little cargo to the head of the lakes ships can make about 30 round-trips a year

The 292 American ships plying the lakes have an ore capacity of 2 650,000 tons. On the basis of a 30-round-trip record the steel tonnage would reach 80,000,000 — enough to meet the requirements of this year's defense program.

Another situation which confronts ship operators is that the Canadian fleet may be tied up with its own grain shipments and probably will not be able to give American shippers much aid until later in the season

Thus with the coal operators demanding more shipments — there are 5,000,000 tons behind last year's shipping—and the Canadian fleet engaged in moving grain to the East, there appears little possibility of meeting the 75,000,000-tons-of-ore mark.

BAD NEWS

Farmers Hear Lard Type Hog Not In Demand Anymore.

DES MOINES, Ia —(U P)—R. L Pemberton, field secretary of the Iowa Swine Producers association, advises hog raisers against a return to the "old lard type hog" as a result of the recent doubling of hog prices under government guarantee

He called reports of new demand for lard hogs as "false propaganda."

"There has been no appreciable increase in the demand for lard and there is no evidence there will be any significant increase in the future," Pemberton declared.

Lard, he added, is still selling at about 4 cents a pound less than the cost of the dressed hog carcass, and huge stocks of lard are still on hand.

He urged swine producers to continue to raise the "intermediate" hog which has been developed in recent years to give a greater percentage of higher-priced meat cuts such as ham, bacon and loin.

The combined pre-war area of France Germany and Spain was about 2,600 square miles less than the area of Quebec

SACRIFICE TO PEACE

PASADENA, Cal.—(U P)—Haled into court on a charge of harboring a crowing rooster, Mrs. Frank Blain informed the court the rooster would crow no more. The judge seemed dubious. "We ate it for supper last night," was Mrs. Blain's convincing testimony.

Sport Podge by REX HESS

When Warren Cameraman Dutch Baker withdrew his amage suit demanding the eturn of movies he took at Massillon game while attending as a scout, he did so ith the announced intention f improving relations beween Warren and Massillon. But the relations, it seems, ren't so hot yet.

* * *

A group of Massillon and Akron ien attended a meeting of the Warren school board two nights go with a $10,000 offer to War-n to transfer their home game ith Massillon next week to the kron Rubber bowl.

The Warren board told them ey weren't interested in the oney and wouldn't transfer for ice $10,000. They had an obli-ation to Warren fans to permit em to see the game without iving 40 miles

* * *

The Massillons told the Warens that Massillon also would ike to see the game, and that n the past Massillon fans go-ng to Warren found Warren ans sitting in the seats that Massillon had purchased. They ven indicated that relations would be broken off unless Warren guarantee seats for the Massillon fans in the future.

* * *

The switch from Warren to kron would have boosted e crowd from 10,000 to 37,-00. The stadium at Massil-n seats 18,000, with 4,000 ore in temporary bleachers. A capacity crowd of 22,000 assured for Mansfield's me at Massillon tomorrow ght. Last year an over-owing crowd of 8,000 saw ansfield and Massillon play re.

* * *

If Mansfield continues to have od teams, and if Massillon con-ues to want thousands of tick-, for road games, what chance ll Mansfield have of booking a me game with Massillon in the ure if Warren's 10,000 stadium n't take care of their game? What chance would Mansfield ve of caring for the 22,000 owd expected at Massillon to-rrow night?

* * *

And what chance will Mansfield have of continuing in "big ague" football with its pres-nt small seating arrangement? hat's something for someone think about.

* * *

Says Spiv Harris in the Mt. rnon News:

"This business of writing orts is getting complicated. guy has to be a poet to get ng.

"First, our old friend and worker, Rex Hess, began eating his customers to son-ts and couplets; Eddie ietz wasn't too bad, and hn Lardner gets by; but w another NCO league ribe—Paul F. Keckstein of e Bucyrus Forum Telegraph s doing it.

"So, with apologies to my o faithful followers (but y warnings to Hess, Keck-in & Co.) here goes:

Poetic sportswriters set me crazy,

GRIDDER IN HOSPITAL

SHELBY—Robert Ernsberger, sity end and star pass receiver the Shelby Whippet eleven, to-was in Shelby Memorial hos-al to undergo an appendicitis ration.

Ohio Hit As Graf Benched

Hallabrin Also Hurt Before Northwestern Game.

COLUMBUS — (U.P.) — The miracle man of Massillon will have to outdo himself to conjure a football victory Saturday.

Paul Brown, winner in the last 36 games he has coached, announced gloomily today that Jack Graf, senior Ohio State fullback and sparkplug of the team, will not be available for service against Northwestern here Saturday.

* * *

Loss of Graf plummeted the Buckeye pigskin fortunes to a new season low along with their chances to stay undefeated for the season against the rebounding Wildcats.

* * *

"There's just no use trying to fool ourselves," Brown said. "Jack simply won't be ready this weekend. He hasn't been able to do any serious work. His leg is still stiff from that Purdue game injury."

To make matters worse, John Hallabrin, another veteran workhorse, turned up with a foot injury that kept him out of practice yesterday. Brown had planned to switch Hallabrin from his regular quarterback post to fullback in place of the injured Graf.

Instead, Brown said that Sophomore Bob Hecklinger, former Toledo Waite scholastic star and a third-stringer on the Buck squad, probably will get the starting fullback call Saturday.

The gloom around the Ohio State camp didn't affect the razor-edge interest in Columbus and environs for the coming battle. There was not a ticket left for sale at the university offices and a capacity house of 73,500 fans was forecast.

Scalpers were asking $5 for regular $3 reserved seat pasteboards and the price was mounting. Hotel space for the weekend was also sold out.

The Buckeye fans received with mixed emotions news from Evanston that Bill De Correvont, the Northwestern backfield ace, was sick in a hospital with a touch of influenza. De Correvont still is the likely left halfback starter against the Buckeyes but if he can't make it, Lynn Waldorf has Otto Graham, prize sophomore, for the job.

Graham, a triple-threat star, is being compared with Tom Harmon as a ball-carrier and far ahead of De Correvont on the latter's sophomore form.

* * *

The Wildcat squad, in a snarling mood after absorbing its first defeat last Saturday at the hands of Michigan, will arrive here tomorrow afternoon.

BOWLING DOUBLES TOURNEY PLANNED

A doubles tournament to be conducted for four Saturday evenings starting at 6 o'clock, is being lined up by Colony bowling alleys, to open Oct. 25. Nearly enough teams for a 42-team tourney already are entered.

A prize list of $105 has been set up for the tournament, with entry fee at two dollars per person. The average of any team must not exceed 350.

A women's afternoon league of eight teams was organized this week and will open its season Tuesday at 2:15 p. m.

Colleges Keep Frosh Barrier

Conference Denies Aid To Small Schools.

Small colleges of the Ohio conference, attempting to play through their conference football schedules with undermanned squads, were denied aid through the use of freshmen players by the conference at its meeting last night at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

* * *

Three possible solutions to football problems at the smaller schools were voted down by the conference.

The first would have abolished the conference rule barring the use of freshmen on varsity athletic teams.

The second would have permitted the use of freshmen with the approval of opposing teams and the conference eligibility committee.

The third would have divided the conference into A and B schools.

The press was barred from the meeting after a vote early in the two-hour and 15-minute session.

Prof. M. S. Douglas of Case School of Applied Science, president of the conference, called the meeting here after the plight of the smaller colleges had been discussed recently by Ohio college presidents in a session at Granville. Loss of players who have entered Uncle Sam's armed forces or defense industry is blamed in part for the depleted squads

Colleges which would have benefited from a modification of the freshman rule included Mt. Union which now has a squad of 16 men and four games to play, Ashland college, also with a squad of 16 men, including three injured players, and three games to play, and Marietta, with a squad of 19 players.

Coaches Bob Wright of Mt. Union, Tony Lonero of Ashland and Duke Hayes of Marietta, all indicated they would attempt to struggle through their schedules even with the handicap of their small squads.

* * *

The action last night definitely shelved the question of aid to the smaller school under the regular conference meeting in December, but many of the college representatives at the meeting were heard to remark that something probably will have to be done before another school year opens.

PRACTICE PASSES

CLEVELAND — (AP) — John Carroll gridders are working overtime on pass defense in an effort to stop the Case Rough Riders Saturday. The J. C. line is expected to bottle up undefeated Case, but no team this year has been able to break up the Rough Riders' aerial game.

If They're Worried They Don't Show It

This picture was supposed to show Mansfield high coaches in a huddle worrying over tomorrow night's game at Massillon. But Athletic Director Harry Mehock, left, Coach Paul Snyder, center, and Backfield Coach Vern Hoffman, right, got their signals crossed. The expressions they turned on The News-Journal cameraman didn't register worry.

CAMP SHELBY OHIOANS SLATE FOOTBALL GAMES

CAMP SHELBY, Miss — (AP) — The 37th division football team will open its schedule Nov. 11 at Hattiesburg, Miss., with the 38th division as its opponent, Capt. Raymond Novotny, 37th recreation officer and team coach, announced today.

The Ohioans' other games will be: Nov. 15, 34th division at Alexandria, La.; Nov. 22, 32nd division at Alexandria; Dec. 6, 34th division at Hattiesburg, Dec. 13, 32nd division at Hattiesburg: and Dec. 20, 38th division at Hattiesburg.

Shelby Plays Crestline

Both Teams Have Won 3 of 5 Game Starts.

SHELBY—Shelby Whippets will play Crestline at the W. W. Skiles athletic field here at 2:30 p. m. Saturday in a non-league game.

Shelby will be out after its fourth win in six games, having won three out of the first five. Crestline has a similar record, having been defeated by Upper Sandusky and Tiffin Calvert. Tiffin barely nosed the Crestline eleven out last week, 14-12.

Shelby downed Bucyrus, 19-6, last week.

Ashland and Shelby are tied for the lead in the North Central Ohio league football race on a point basis. Both teams have won two and lost one, giving a point score of four.

The league standing follows:

Team	W.	L.	T.	Pts.
Shelby	2	1	0	4
Ashland	2	1	0	4
Marion Harding	1	0	1	3
Mount Vernon	0	0	1	1
Galion	0	1	0	1
Bucyrus	0	1	2	1

Star Who Scored Kickoff Touchdown Returns Sunday

The last time he was here he grabbed the opening kickoff and ran 98 yards for a touchdown.

His name is Southard, he's from Tennessee, and he played against the Mansfield Pros in Mansfield last season with the Columbus Avondales.

He'll be back again Sunday afternoon when the Mansfield City News club meets the Columbus Pros, formerly the Avondales, at Madison high gridiron at 2:30 o'clock.

That's the news that came from Columbus today as Mansfield prepared for its first Sunday gridiron attraction of the season.

The Columbus Pros, defeated by the Mansfielders in 1940, are reported to have strengthened their lineup, and now boast a record for this fall of three victories and one tie.

Mansfield has won two games, against Lorain and Toledo, and played a respectable 18-6 defeat against the strong South Akron Awnings at Akron.

The future of professional football in Mansfield probably depends on the success of Sunday's venture at Madison. The City News club discovered it couldn't come close to breaking even on Saturday night games, and this shouldn't surprise Mansfield sport fans. Smallest crowds of the baseball season this past summer were on Saturday nights.

The Mansfield Pros have rounded together a squad of former Mansfield and Madison high stars that has made a good showing in each of its three games, so good, in fact, that the usually strong McKeesport, Pa., team cancelled a game with the City News last week at McKeesport rather than take a chance on defeat on its home gridiron. The cancellation came after McKeesport had been handed a sound drubbing by the South Akron Awnings, a team which Mansfield outplayed in the last half.

Mansfield Fans Hope For Rain Tomorrow

Believe Wet Night Would Aid Tygers' Chances at Massillon

MANSFIELD welcomed the rain today as over 10 per cent of its population prepared for the greatest mass migration in the city's history to see the Mansfield-Massillon high school football game at Massillon tomorrow night.

"Mansfield's chances of winning will be just that much better if it rains like this at Massillon tomorrow night," agreed the majority of the city's gridiron fans.

They argued that a wet night would cut down the speed of the Massillon backfield and reduce the effectiveness of the Tiger aerial attack.

Waiting for the game that may mean a state championship for either team, Mansfield has gone completely football crazy this week. Only one topic is heard in conversations on the street, in stores, bars, pool rooms, even in factories: "Will Mansfield beat Massillon?"

That also was the chief topic of fan chatter among Ohio college representatives as they met here last night to vote on the important question of permitting freshmen to play on Ohio conference teams. And most of them wished Mansfield luck.

At the same time the Mansfield Downtown Coaches were holding their weekly session at the high school, with the Tyger gridders as special guests.

In addition to the usual summary of the game of the preceding week, and an outline of Mansfield's plans for the coming game, the Tygers were treated to pep talks by Herb Slough, former Mansfield high and Ohio State gridder, and by Coach Snyder.

This afternoon the high school is having a pep rally for the Tygers, in charge of the cheer leaders, and with Sam Vining as principal speaker.

Coach Snyder announced today a full squad of three teams will leave by bus tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock for Massillon. He expressed hope that Bill Pecht, injured tackle, would be in shape to play but doubted if he would be in the starting lineup.

Indications today were that nearly 5,000 Mansfield fans would make the trip to Massillon tomorrow night, 1,000 of them by special train arranged by the Downtown Coaches, and the rest by automobile.

Tickets sold here included 3,500 to adults, and 1,000 to students, while several hundred Mansfielders ordered tickets through Massillon fans weeks and even months ago.

Pennsylvania railroad officials today reminded the fans that the special train will leave here promptly at 5:20 p. m. and that the fans must show their tickets before boarding the train. They are also urged to use the subway, and keep the railroad tracks clear.

* * *

Downtown Coaches, who have made no concerted effort thus far in this successful season to increase their membership, will be active on the train soliciting memberships. They'd like to build the Mansfield organization into one as strong as that in Massillon and other Ohio cities.

Rams Meet Marion Team

Play St. Mary's Game In Marion Tonight.

After a light practice session yesterday afternoon devoted entirely to pass work, the Madison Rams will pack their moleskins tonight and move to Marion to meet St. Mary's high.

So far this season the Rams have been threatening to pass before practically every game, but so far they just haven't passed. When the occasion arose to pass the Rams wound up galloping at a tackle.

* * *

This time it is finally going to be different, says Al Fendrick, Madison Coach. The boys are going to pass.

* * *

Probably one of the reasons the Rams do not pass more is a shortage of pigskin peggers. Best passer at the Madison practice last night seemed to be Harold Hammer, but Hammer is a little short of consistent passing.

* * *

Alternative seems to be Bob Anthony, but although Anthony has a nice passing form, he's going to need more training before he develops into a consistent and accurate pass specialist.

* * *

The Madison squad will be favored to take this game. After a good season last year the St. Mary's team has been running on rough ground, losing two, tieing one and winning one from Forest high.

Madison has won three and lost two.

CLUB MEETS

Members of the Charles Mill Sportsman's club held their regular meeting last night at the cabin of Mayor W. J. Locke and Roy Vaughn at Charles Mill lake.

Feller Classified For Army

Receives 1-A Rating, May Try For Air Corps.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Come the dawn of a new year, it'll be about time for the sergeant to dip up a uniform for baseball's Bob Feller. And it won't say "Cleveland Indians" on it.

Everyone is privileged to hazard a guess as to when selective service Board No. 2, which last night classified Feller as 1-A, will be sending the 23-year-old diamond ace to camp—maybe into the air corps. Feller can fly.

But it won't be November, maybe not December, could be January.

Out in Van Meter, Ia., where Mr. and Mrs. William Feller's Robert is preparing to go on a pheasant hunt in South Dakota, the news moved the pitcher to remark that it's no surprise, he's "ready to go any time," and "for one thing, it'll be easier to budget $21 a month."

* * *

He could have been dropping Uncle Sam a hint when he said he didn't "expect any favors" but might try to get into the air corps. He was taking flying lessons last summer before the ball club, which carries $200,000 insurance on him, heard about it.

Wayne L. Townsend, board secretary, refused to make any predictions. "It's impossible even to guess when Feller will be called because there are all kinds of 1-A registrants ahead of him," he said

Gophers Wait Michigan Ace

Westfall Rated Best By Minnesota Squad.

MINNEAPOLIS — (AP) — The Michigan man Minnesota respects most is Captain Bob Westfall And there's a reason.

Minnesota scouts, rating Westfall as the best spinning fullback in the nation, reports he is just as dangerous as ever. He and the sophomore great, Tom Kuzma, fake the ball to each other. Sometimes the enemy sees it; most of the time they don't. Coach Bernie Bierman, busy building a defense against the chap who almost wrecked him last year, hopes his lads see the pigskin often enough at Ann Arbor Saturday.

Westfall is not a flashy type. The triple threat business is for the other boys. He doesn't kick; he doesn't pass. But, boy, ho he can spin with that football.

Coach Bierman doesn't have to steam up his varsity about Westfall Because most of them were in there for that 1940 title game.

Then, Westfall came to Minneapolis as just another guy in the backfield. All the advance notices went to Tommy Harmon. After the game, Harmon got some notices—in reverse. The genuine stuff went to Westfall.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK — (The Special News Service)—Ever hear the one about the little fish that didn't get away? . . . The George Ruppert fishing contest offers prizes for the smallest fish caught as well as the big ones. . . . Current leader is a black sea bass weighing 75 grains or 0.1714 ounces.... Al Weill, who has four featherweights and five welters in his fight stable, is talking about putting two of them together to make one heavyweight who might lick Louis. . . . Dan Topping, who is threatening to make some trades if his professional Dodgers don't wake up, was seen listening attentively when Ossie Solem described the beauties of the "Y" formation to the football writers the other day, especially when Ossie remarked that his contract runs out this year.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR.

Jerry Mitchell, New York Post: "Zeke Bonura was released by the army. His 33 years made him an over-age destroyer."

WRONG APPROACH.

When Umpire Beans Reardon was asking President Ford Frick of the National league for a raise, he remarked: "I'd retire from umpiring if I had enough money." . . . Frick promptly turned down the raise for fear Beans really meant it.

Cafe Keglers Beat Birdies

Bissman's Roll High Total But Lose Match.

Bissman Birdie Brands rolled high total in the City "A" bowling league last night with 2,861 on games of 1,019-942-900, but they dropped a 1-2 decision to Orange Street Cafe, winning only the 1,019 tilt.

* * *

Orlie Grable of Orange St. was the chief cause of the Bissman downfall. He took league scoring honors with 193-203-224 620.

* * *

High single game went to Winnie Cleckner of Bissman's with 258, while turning in a 619 total, just one under Grable.

Smith of Lutz Lumber was the only other 600 kegler, chalking up 610.

FOLLOWING THE WELL-PAVED and well-marked highways is a comparatively easy job. At that, one must keep his wits and be ever alert to avoid inevitable wrecks and accidents lurking along the way, so frequently caused by the other fellow's carelessness.

Getting back on the main highway from the Detour is often difficult, but it's the real objective of the man in the driver's seat.

Life is not always a well-paved highway. Frequently a man runs into business "detours," and too often he attempts to follow the directional signs carefully, only to have dust get in his eyes and cloud his vision. In his confusion, and lacking resourcefulness, he becomes stranded.

A self-made man who has learned to "take it" early in life and has the intestinal fortitude to drive back to the smooth pavement will be thankful for taking advantage of his earlier opportunities.

NEWSPAPER BOYS need have no fear of Detour signs. Their training and experience are as basically sound as the dollars they earn on their newspaper routes.

WHAT? WHAT GENTLEMAN? YOU MEAN YOU'VE FOUND SOMEONE ELSE IN HERE?
YES--OR WHAT MUST HAVE PASSED FOR A GENTLEMAN IN HIS DAY. JUDGING FROM HIS RICH ARMOR-
10-23-41
A SPANIARD--NO DOUBT ONE OF THOSE WHO WORKED THE MINE WITH INDIAN SLAVES-- IT WAS VERY LONG AGO---
GREAT SCOTT! A SKELETON IN ARMOR!
AH-H---SEE? THE ARROW FOUND A CHINK IN THE ARMOR---AND SO THIS ONE DIED HERE- APPARENTLY THE INDIANS WERE NOT WILLING SLAVES-
NO DOUBT THIS GREAT CAVE WAS THE SCENE OF INTERESTING STRIFE, SOME CENTURIES AGO--PERHAPS WE SHALL FIND FURTHER REMINDERS OF THE PAST!
EEE! HERE'S ANOTHER ONE!

STOCK BIDDERS CONTINUE SHY ON DAY'S MART

Prices Remain Balanced on Small Trading, Some Show Plus Signs.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Bidders continued notably shy in today's stock market but there were enough of them to keep prices fairly well balanced.

Plus signs were acquired by U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, N. Y. Central, American Telephone, Western Union, Chrysler, United Aircraft and Kennecott.

Behind occasionally were General Electric, Goodrich, International Harvester, Anaconda, Douglas Aircraft, Woolworth and Chesapeake & Ohio.

Boardrooms found further indications of a flattening out in the industrial swing in the survey of the Engineering News-Record disclosing navy construction awards for the week ended Tuesday fell 45 per cent under the corresponding period last year.

It was pointed out, however, that the latest week's building total brought 1941 awards to $5,147,515,000, an increase of 69 per cent over the same time a year ago and 29 per cent greater than all of 1940.

BLOCK THAT KICK-

No Question About the Style of These Coats!

Yes sir—we made sure of "blocking" any kicks about the style in top coats by going to the college campus for our style ideas. And when you step into our store for a top coat, you'll step out with a winner!

Note particularly that new fall styles are smarter—they definitely "date" last year's models! Space doesn't permit us to list our All-American lineup of fabrics and patterns—you just name your favorite; betcha we have it—and at a price you can cheerfully pay.
